

Legion Committee Partially Indorses Views of Mitchell

Resolution Approves Re-organization of National Defense Under One Officer in Cabinet.

REFUSE TO MENTION MITCHELL BY NAME

Fight on Floor of Convention Expected Today. Three Active Candidates For Commander.

Omaha, Neb., October 7.—(AP)—Behind the scenes the American Legion's national convention was a seething cauldron of politics and policy today. In the open session all would have been profane but for a last minute objection which sent the report of the world peace committee to the resolutions committee for amendment.

The only business perfected was selection of Philadelphia for the 1926 convention and the awarding of the 1927 meeting to Paris. The remainder of the time was devoted to addresses by army and navy officers and reading of messages.

Fall to Mention Mitchell.
The aeronautical committee of the legion fought heatedly all day over whether to recommend endorsement of Colonel William Mitchell, caustic critic of the nation's aerial defense. A resolution was finally adopted which, however, failed to mention Mitchell's name.

The resolution embodied, however, one point he has urged—reorganization of the national defense under one cabinet officer, with subdivisions of equal importance for land, sea and air. It was the product of the pen of Reed Landis, America's second ace and son of Kennesaw Mountain Landis. It was upon that point that the all-day fight was centered. No other change was made in the proposed resolution as drawn last Monday.

The committee's action did not dispose of the Mitchell matter, however. According to many expressions, the turn it takes tomorrow depends upon the selection of a national commander to succeed James A. Drain.

Storm Today Predicted.
Tonight there did not seem to be much probability of a minority report, but it was predicted freely that the national commander's query "Is there any discussion, before putting the vote," would unleash a storm of fiery debate.

The consensus of the Mitchellites seemed to be that not all that Colonel Mitchell has said should be recommended, but that he should be praised by name for bringing to the American people an awakening to actual conditions in the air service.

The world peace report recommended that the legion espouse the world court with the understanding that the league of nations be made a subject for one year's study by the American Legion posts.

Three Avoiced Candidates.
Tonight it was agreed in all quarters that the fight for national commander would shape itself after midnight tomorrow.

Three avowed candidates are in the field, but none with nearly enough grip.

ARGUMENTS OPEN ON TRIAL OF COLE ON MURDER COUNT

State Ridicules Defense Position In Pleading Both Insanity and Self-Defense In Killing.

EXTRA LEGISLATIVE SESSION IS OPPOSED

Opposition Looms As Governor Walker Is "Undecided"—Pension Scrip Ordered Issued.

Rockingham, N. C., October 7.—(By the Associated Press.)—Argument of counsel and the charge of the court today stood before the jury's consideration of a murder charge against William B. Cole, who, last August 15, shot and killed W. W. Ormond, his daughter's former suitor.

"This case must be tried on the evidence and not on the sympathies of the audience," Judge Finley declared when court was opened. He cautioned the crowded room that demonstrations would not be tolerated.

Clyde Hoey, Shelby, first addressed the jury for the state.

"Without malice, without hatred or without bitterness in my soul, I come to interpret for the state the evidence in this trial."

The speaker addressed himself to three propositions:

"1.—That Cole shot Ormond after premeditation and deliberation after malice aforethought.

"2.—That Cole did not shoot in self-defense.

"3.—That Cole is not and was not insane when he shot and killed Ormond.

"We do no task that Cole be found guilty because he is wealthy and powerful. We do not ask that you convict Cole because the man he killed was poor."

"But it would be a travesty on justice and an everlasting shame on the state of North Carolina if his money, position and power."

Mr. Hoey then traced the early relations of Cole and Ormond, of how Cole first liked Ormond and later changed. He quoted from the last letter Ormond wrote, and the last communication Cole testified he had from Ormond.

That letter said that Ormond was through with the Coles; that the matter had dropped out of his life and he did not intend to pick it up again.

A defense lawyer was attentive and quiet. Tears were in his eyes as Hoey discussed Ormond's work at Raleigh and his letter to Ormond saying:

"It is the best job I ever had, and I'm going to make good in spite of the Coles."

Cole sat undisturbed as the speaker pictured him as a deliberate murderer. Miss Elizabeth Cole, his daughter, sat behind him. Tears were in her eyes.

Hoey read to the jury the letter Ormond wrote to Cole telling of improper relations with his daughter.

Every line in that letter was a letter as a slander. Every line written by Ormond and all their reference to that dead man has been a lie, Hoey said.

"If every line in that letter was a lie, it is the best job I ever had, and I'm going to make good in spite of the Coles."

VETERAN SCRIP MEASURE HELD VOID BY GRESS

Act Believed Unconstitutional by Assistant Attorney General Who Explains Measure.

EXTRA LEGISLATIVE SESSION IS OPPOSED

Opposition Looms As Governor Walker Is "Undecided"—Pension Scrip Ordered Issued.

In an opinion that the Confederate veterans scrip bill passed by the recent general assembly is worthless, Assistant Attorney General Thomas R. Gress, who drew the bill at the instance of a committee of veterans, Wednesday issued a statement, in which he told of the origin of the measure and reason why it was drawn.

Mr. Gress said that at the time he drew the bill, "on the insistence of veterans, he told them that it is not worth the paper it is written on," and that they assured him that a companion bill to correct defects of the original bill would be introduced.

Such a bill was not introduced and passed, therefore, the scrip bill is of no account, he said.

Unconstitutionality Cited.
The scrip bill creates a debt without an appropriation to pay that debt, Mr. Gress said, and therefore, it is unconstitutional. Mr. Gress said that the constitution of the state specifically sets out that the state shall not be placed in debt, save to correct a temporary deficit not to exceed $500,000, or to repel invasion or suppress insurrection.

The constitution gives the legislature the power to appropriate money but the scrip bill creates a debt without an appropriation to meet it, he pointed out.

Failure to receive any bids for the issue of scrip Tuesday led Governor Walker to direct John W. Clarke, state pension commissioner, to go ahead with preparations for issuing scrip to the veterans. Pension lists are now being purged of deceased veterans and those not entitled to back pensions and will be ready for the scrip to be issued within a month.

Governor Walker is still undecided over the calling of an extra session to perfect a means of paying veterans, stating that he is hoping new developments within the near future will take care of the situation without the necessity of calling the legislature back into session.

Opposition Looming.
Meanwhile, strong opposition to the extra session project is indicated by a poll of Georgia legislators now being taken. It became known Wednesday in returns which are being forwarded to state capital. All the returns are not yet in, but indications are that the vote will be heavily opposed to an extra session under any conditions.

Results of the poll will be forwarded to Governor Walker next week, when all votes have been received.

Herman Milner, Dodge representative, and Jud P. Wilhoit, representative of Warren county, are taking the poll in order that an authentic record stand on the issue may be had.

Mr. Wilhoit and Mr. Milner have expressed opposition to the extra session.

"When citizens of Georgia voted to have biennial sessions of the legislature they meant just that, and they

Half-Way Mark Hit In Forward Atlanta Drive for $250,000

COUNCIL TO BEGIN PRUNING OF BOND ISSUE PROPOSALS

EXTRA LEGISLATIVE SESSION IS OPPOSED

Special Committee To Study Suggestions In Executive Session Set for Friday Night.

When the special bond committee of council meets Friday night it will take under consideration recommendations of officials of various city departments and interested citizens, calling for issuance of approximately $250,000 in improvement bonds.

This fact became evident Wednesday as a session of the committee when needs for improvements of sewers, schools, waterworks, viaducts and other extensions were submitted by department heads and several delegations of citizens.

With these recommendations as a basis the committee in executive session at 7:30 o'clock Friday night is slated to start pruning and revising with a view to formulating an official recommendation regarding the size of the proposed consolidated bond issue.

The present bonding capacity of the city is estimated at $14,000,000, based on tax valuations.

The school needs were presented by Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of schools, and John T. Hancock, president of the board of education. They submitted a minimum bond need for carrying out the school improvement program at $5,000,000.

Sewer needs will cost in the aggregate approximately $9,000,000, according to an estimate by Chief W. A. Hansell, of the city construction department. These were outlined as the same as were recommended to council by the sewer committee as published in The Constitution Tuesday morning.

The improvement plan imperatively needed in the sewer department, however, can be carried out for a smaller amount. The most vital need at present, according to the report of the sewer committee, is the removal of the Peachtree creek sewage disposal plant to a point near the Chattahoochee river and the construction of trunk sewers in the Peachtree creek basin and in the Lakewood section.

City Hall $2,000,000.
The bond issue for the new city hall is estimated at $2,000,000 and an ordinance providing this amount has been introduced in council by Councilman C. G. Allen, original proposer of the new city hall issue. This issue is not like the other proposed bond issues, inasmuch as the interest and sinking fund will be provided from the revenue from the lease of the present city hall property.

Waterworks needs amount to $1,650,000 for a new feeder plant on the Chattahoochee river and $500,000 for the construction of new lateral mains, according to an estimate by W. Zode Smith, superintendent of the waterworks.

Dr. J. T. Bradford told the committee the Battle Hill sanitarium will need $750,000 to provide new buildings and equipment. J. Carroll Payne, Atlanta lawyer, said the proposed new subscription would need $300,000. Miss Tompkins Barker told the committee $100,000 was needed by the Carnegie library for the addition of another story to the present building. Park needs were estimated at $250,000, chiefly for extensions. Pryor street and Central avenue viaducts will cost approximately $2,000,000 of which the city will be asked to pay one-fourth, making a bond issue of about $500,000 needed for this improvement.

Other needs were submitted to the committee as follows: Peter street viaduct $207,000; North avenue underpass, Marietta street, $190,000; Mitchell street viaduct, $100,000; East Tompkins street bridge, $100,000; East avenue bridge $31,000; Westminster drive bridge connecting Piedmont park and Boulevard, $125,000.

Johnson Beats Pirates 4 to 1 In First Game

Old Barney Fans Ten Pittsburg Batters and Gives Up Only Five Widely Scattered Hits.

MEADOWS HURLS FAIRLY GOOD GAME

Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr. and John McE. Bowman Send Unexcited Additions to Sum.

More than half way to the goal, with two days to go and plenty of "prospects" still to be seen, was the report Wednesday afternoon of the workers in the $250,000 advertising fund campaign sponsored by the chamber of commerce. The total subscriptions for two days ran to $135,000 in round figures.

At the luncheon today at 12:30 o'clock the workers expect to run the sum to around $175,000, and finish the job on Friday by a "clean-up" of everybody who had not previously been reached. That will be "wildcat" day, when prospect cards and team territories will be disregarded and the whole city will be wide open to every campaigner.

Even more enthusiasm and good spirits marked the second day of the campaign than the first. Again the two big rooms of the second floor of the Chamber of Commerce building were so crowded that many late comers had difficulty in finding standing room.

Cheers marked the reports of the advance guard committees on subscriptions made by important business houses. The largest was that of the Atlanta Clearing House association, representing the banks, which subscribed $10,000 to the fund. Another cheering cheer greeted the news that Cornelius Vanderbilt, a non-resident visitor, had voluntarily subscribed $4,000, while John McE. Bowman, president of the Atlanta Biltmore hotel, subscribed $1,200 as his personal contribution to Atlanta's movement ahead.

Subscriptions from leading merchants were listed as follows:

J. M. High Co., $5,000; M. Rich & Bro., $3,000; Chamberlain-Johnson-Dubose Co., $2,400; Davidson-Taxon-Stokes Co., $1,200; Keely company, $1,800; J. P. Allen & company, $1,500; George Mose Clothing Co., $1,200; King Hardware Co., $1,200.

Some Are Delayed.
Major and captains explained that numerous large subscriptions from business houses having headquarters in eastern or western cities were delayed until they could be authorized by their headquarters. A special committee is handling these prospects by wire.

On the wall at campaign headquarters a list of about 800 prospects, each having its subscription noted opposite the name as fast as the cards were received. When the workers start "wildcatting" tomorrow, they can choose their prospects from all names on this list against which no subscription is checked.

A gift highly appreciated reached headquarters when a man unknown to any of the working forces dropped in at headquarters and said he wanted to contribute one dollar to the fund to help the city where he makes his living. He reluctantly gave his name as E. V. Seegmuller, of 452 Whitehall street.

No speeches were made at Wednesday's luncheon, except that by Ivan E. Allen, who announced the subscriptions obtained by the advance guard committees.

Every worker in the drive was urged to make every possible effort today to complete his round of prospects before the territories are thrown open tomorrow.

Johnson Beats Pirates 4 to 1 In First Game

Old Barney Fans Ten Pittsburg Batters and Gives Up Only Five Widely Scattered Hits.

MEADOWS HURLS FAIRLY GOOD GAME

Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr. and John McE. Bowman Send Unexcited Additions to Sum.

Pittsburg, October 7.—(By the Associated Press.)—The great right arm of Walter Johnson repulsed the Pittsburg Pirates today in their first bid to board the world's championship baseball craft, now manned by Washington's gallant and seasoned battlers.

Before a home crowd of 45,000 that filled every nook and cranny of Forbes field, the Pirates fell before the masterful strokes of "Old Barney," while his Senator mates pounded out a decisive 4-to-1 triumph in the first clash of the 1925 series conflict.

Striking out ten of the bold Buccaneers and twirling with superb coolness and effectiveness in every crisis, Johnson held the National league champions to five scattered blows, one of them a booming home run by Pie Traynor—while Joe Harris, Sam Rice and Ossie Bluege led an attack that accomplished the downfall of Lee Meadows, bespectacled veteran, and also found its mark against the curves of Johnny Morrison, who took the mound in the ninth after Meadows had given way to a pinch hitter.

The dash and fire of the highly touted howitzers of the Pirate batting batteries were of no avail against the crafty defense of Johnson. Smoke is a familiar home-town product on Pittsburg's fields of battle, but the Buccaneers found that the "big train" of safe blows obtained only when there was any prospect that hits would produce much-needed runs.

Plenty of Speed.
For Johnson today had all the "smoke" of his famous speed as well as the baffling change of pace that has helped him keep the peak and rule as one of the marvels of the national game in spite of nearly a score years in big league service.

The Pirates trained their biggest guns on "Old Barney," but they couldn't find the range except for the one stroke put through by Traynor, who altogether got two of the best of safe blows obtained.

Johnson and figured as the only successful gunner of the Pittsburg firing line. The others found a mark occasionally, but their aim was not true. More often they punched in vain at the air, for Johnson, among his best strikeout victims, twice numbered Kiki Cuyler, Clyde Barnhart and Kiki Wright—three of the heaviest weapons in the Pittsburg attack.

Johnson occasionally faced prospective trouble. He was a bit wild at times, but he was always nightiest in the pinches. He faced his biggest threat in the ninth inning, when the Pirates got two men on base with only one out but Traynor and Wright could do nothing but lift his shoats for easy outs.

Glorious Seemed Denied.
Johnson's brilliant triumph was all the greater to him, for it marked the first full game he had pitched to victory in a world's series. Last fall, after 18 long years of waiting, it

Fair Gates Swing Wide for Visitors At Opening Today

FIRE COMPLETELY GUTS DUBLIN FAIR AS FILM EXPLODES

MEADOWS HURLS FAIRLY GOOD GAME

Hundreds of Visitors and Performers in 16 Shows Narrowly Escape Death In Sweep of Flames.

Dublin, Ga., October 7.—(Special.)—Flames which broke out in the 12th district fair grounds here at 5 o'clock this afternoon, completely destroyed all buildings to the ground and their contents, except one live stock shed. Many automobiles, thousands of dollars in exhibits and all equipment of 16 Baskort shows were lost. Several hundred visitors barely escaped serious injuries and only the combined efforts of hundreds of volunteer workers saved livestock exhibits, performers in several midway shows which were in the midst of afternoon programs and visitors in a number of exhibit buildings who barely escaped being trapped by the sweeping flames.

Picture Film Explodes.
The fire followed an explosion of a motion picture film which was being made on the grounds and before anyone realized the consequences of the small burst of smoke, flames quickly broke out and before an alarm could be sounded, the woman's exhibit building, the county school exhibit building and the county exhibit building were wrapped by devastating flames.

Only a miracle saved several score women from being cremated or badly burned in the woman's building, the flames springing and leaping to all sections of the building before anyone knew of the fire. Flimsy handiwork on exhibit in the building, had been draped promiscuously throughout, giving the flames every advantage against efforts of firefighters. The suddenness of the blaze and the headway it made throughout buildings, grouped closely together and containing exhibits which fairly fed the fire, caused visitors in the grounds to confine their efforts to saving themselves and livestock.

Pandemonium broke loose with the first gust of the fire and panic seized a number of women who had to be virtually dragged from the buildings. In the meantime, Baskort show performers were interrupted in their acts and fled the scene, while scores worked frantically to save several hundred horses, mules, hogs, cows and many exhibits of poultry. In some instances the women generally ran and the exhibit pens and permit the stock to dash out into the open.

Later today, owners had not correlated the blaze and the fire was at the end of the city in the section in which the fair grounds were located, is more like a great stock farm to dash out into the open.

Turnstiles Ready to Click Behind Thousands Expected To Visit Mammoth Exhibition Today.

MIDWAY TO OPEN TWO HOURS LATER

EXTRA LEGISLATIVE SESSION IS OPPOSED

Horse Show and Cavalry Drills In Front of Grandstands Will Close Day's Program.

A swarm of more than 5,000 men and women turned the vast expanse of the Southeastern Fair grounds into a zooming beehive of industry all Wednesday and Wednesday night, under the light of the fair's new quarter-million dollar white-way system, in preparation for the formal opening of the 1925 Southeastern fair at 8 o'clock this morning to continue 10 days until October 17.

Hammers clattered and saws screamed throughout the night along the more than two miles of paved driveways that have been turned into midway by the permanent amusement concessions.

At noon Wednesday it was apparent that fair precedents would be shattered when the turnstiles began to click by virtue of the actual completion of every educational, exploitation and amusement exhibit and feature arranged for the season.

The program for the 10 days leaves the afternoon of the opening day as the only one in which the midway amusements, including the famous Rubin & Cherry shows, bringing a wide assortment of midway attractions heralded as first in their line; scores of other shows and rides will have no competition on the race track or in the grandstand and the performers and barkers, practically all of whom are in prime condition through the four days' rest since the closing of their last engagement last Saturday, were set to make the most of the opportunity to show Atlanta a good time on its first visit to the fair.

Displays Open at 3:30.
The livestock exhibit building, in which the state college of agriculture has in view the identical exhibit sent to the Southern exposition, New York, by the cooperation of the Atlanta Junior Chamber of Commerce and Georgia business men last spring, the city of Atlanta and Fulton county school displays, the woman's department, including nearly $250,000 worth of fancy work and domestic art work and the big flower show, and displays of another $250,000 worth of Atlanta and Georgia commercial and industrial products generally are closed in the liberal arts division of the fair, will open at 3:30 o'clock.

The Automobile building will open at 9 o'clock, the presidential building, the biggest automobile show ever held at the Southeastern fair with the exception of one year and including new models and other exhibits valued at more than $500,000.

The Agricultural building and national cattle and hog show, the latter held in two additional buildings back of the Agricultural building, are scheduled to open about 9:30 o'clock, putting on exhibition more prize-winning models than any other show ever held in the southeast.

The signal for the opening of the midway attractions will be given at 10 o'clock and will be followed by the blaring of more than a dozen carousels from as many riding devices, the first band concert by the Rubin and Cherry

CREDIT UNION ACT
LEGALITY DOUBTED

Doubt as to the constitutionality of the Credit Union act, a measure to promote thrift among workmen passed by the recent session of the general assembly arose Wednesday when S. G. McLendon, secretary of state, asked Attorney General Napier for an opinion on the law before issuing a charter to Atlanta postal clerks.

whether such authority could be exercised only by a superior court judge. Mr. McLendon, upon receiving a reply from Attorney General Napier to the effect that the matter rested largely upon his discretion, stated that he intended to obtain opinions from trust company and bank attorneys as to whether or not a credit union can legally be construed as a bank.

The secretary of state has authority under the constitution to issue charters to banks, insurance, railroad, canal, navigation, express and telegraph companies, and Mr. McLendon doubted Wednesday that this authority could be construed so as to include credit unions. A credit union is a lending organization, Mr. McLendon said, whereas a bank is a place where money is placed and can be recovered at will.

"I am wondering if the provisions of the Credit Union act are in conflict with the code, which gives to the courts of the state the authority to grant charters to private companies," Mr. McLendon wrote the attorney general, to which Mr. Napier replied that the question is not entirely free from doubt, though it would seem from the broad consideration of the entire subject that Mr. McLendon would be authorized to hold that it would come within his jurisdiction.

"Inasmuch as the credit unions are authorized to receive the funds and savings of its members in payment for shares or deposit, and to receive deposits from non-members, and to make loans and to invest, through its board of directors, its surplus funds, etc., it would appear that such a credit union would have broad banking powers; and, in my opinion, it would be within your authority to hold that a credit union is a banking company, and therefore permit the same to be incorporated," Mr. Napier said.

"Of course, you have discretion in construing an act of the general assembly, and this question is not entirely free from doubt, but it would seem from the broad consideration of the entire subject that you would be authorized to hold that, inasmuch as a credit union is a banking institution, it would come within your jurisdiction." Mr. McLendon declared he intends to give the matter considerable thought from all angles before proceeding, and that he will seek further advice as to whether a credit union can legally be construed as a banking institution.

ARGUMENTS OPEN IN TRIAL OF COLE

He Cole could have sent him to the roads for two years."

He read the law on slander.

"W. B. Cole has done something the legislature of North Carolina has never done. He killed a man for what he said was slander."

"He has been his own judge, jury and executioner. He decided Ormond should be killed, he decided to kill him and he killed him."

"I have been practicing law 26 years tomorrow. In all my life I have never witnessed such inconsis-ency as that of pleading self-defense and insanity."

"He testified on oath that he would do again what he had done, and now he says he did not know what he did."

Defense Begins.

Clyde Hoey closed at 11 o'clock and James P. Raleigh, addressed the court and prepared to give the first arguments for the defense.

"We admit that W. B. Cole killed Bill Ormond," Mr. Raleigh declared, "but we contend that if Mr. Cole honestly believed he was in danger and honestly acted on that belief, he is not responsible and should be acquitted."

"The law of North Carolina on insanity was quoted to you but it was not read in full. The law says that a man to be justified in killing another must not have known the character of his act. That much has been read to you. But the law says this:

"A man must not have known the character of his act or, if by reason of mental disease the defendant did not know what he was doing."

The burden of Mr. Raleigh's argument, which he based on numerous quotations from decisions was that Cole's guilt or innocence depended not upon whether the conditions justified his act but whether his apprehension was such that he believed himself in danger of bodily harm.

Mr. Raleigh read the law on insanity which he charged Clyde Hoey with not completing. Mr. Hoey interrupted.

"I read every word, Mr. Raleigh. I do not attempt to misrepresent."

"We contend first that Cole had a reason to believe he was in danger and second that after a period of six months of worry and fear his mind was in such a state he believed he should be killed."

The state says:

"Hang Cole for his crime if you can but if you can't hang him for it, hang him for his insanity."

"I charge the prosecution to declare the truth or falsity of this 'slander' letter. They have beaten around the bush and have not said, 'If that letter was true it was a malicious slander; if it was false it was a damnable lie. We want the state to say.'"

COLONEL COOLIDGE
IN BIG DEMAND
AS AIDE TO CUPID

Plymouth, Vt., October 7.—For the second time in less than three weeks, Colonel John C. Coolidge, the president's father, officiated at a marriage ceremony at his home here Wednesday.

Miss Ettie L. Robbins, New York, school teacher, and Fred Copeland, cashier of the National bank at Randolph, came 40 miles from Randolph to be wedded by the president's father.

Colonel Coolidge, a justice of the peace, agreed to perform the ceremony because both Miss Robbins and Copeland are friends of Dr. Albert Cram, the colonel's physician. Dr. and Mrs. Cram were the only witnesses to the ceremony, which was performed on the exact spot where Calvin Coolidge stood while being sworn into the highest office of the land.

On September 22 last, Colonel Coolidge officiated at the wedding of Doris Keith and Hollis Holt, of Bellows Falls.

CHURCH LEADERS
WILL OPEN PROBE
OF PROHIBITION

Washington, October 7.—(AP)—Appointment of a "representative group of church leaders" to consider all issues raised by the recent prohibition report of the research department of the federal council of churches was announced tonight by the council. The administrative committee, representing "the constituent denominations of the council," appointed the group.

The Rev. Dr. Charles S. McFarland, general secretary of the federal council, in making the announcement said the attitude of the administrative committee was "one of complete and unabated support of prohibition with the feeling that the one thing needed was the awakening and educating of public opinion."

After completion of its study the special committee has been charged with issuing a statement setting forth the "conviction of the federal council as to the value of impartial research; the council's unequivocal advocacy of prohibition, and the need for a vigorous effort to secure observance of the law and for a more effective program of temperance education."

Foreyth street bridge $100,000; Training School for Girls, $100,000; Judge E. C. Kountz, who opposed the ratification of the city hall bond issue in the recent election, appeared before the committee and urged the passage of a consolidated bond issue to take care of the needed improvements. He said because he opposed the recent bond issue he was not against a general bond issue and urged the committee to recommend the submission of the consolidated bond issue. He said each item should be submitted separately but in the same election.

Mayor Walter A. Sims said Wednesday he hopes the committee submits a comprehensive report to council so that the consolidated bond issue question can be threshed out and put into shape for submission in an election in November or December.

JAMES A. HOLLOMON
SPEAKS AT ROYSTON

Royston, Ga., October 7.—(Special.)—The annual school fair of Franklin county, held under the auspices of the vocational and farm demonstration work, was held today on the grounds of the Franklin county high school. Prominent among the exhibits were two ton litters of pigs raised in Franklin county by E. N. Little and Willie Randall. These litters will go to the Southeastern fair for exhibit, and as there are only six ton litters in the entire state, it is confidently expected that Franklin county will take prizes on both its litters.

The home economics, poultry, arts and science exhibits were displayed in the new athletic building of the Franklin county high school and notwithstanding the drought in the county, the exhibits were numerous and well displayed.

All exhibits were by members of the boys and girls' clubs of the county and the Federated Women's Clubs.

A feature of today was an address by James A. Hollomon, of the Atlanta Constitution, delivered at the high-school auditorium. Mr. Hollomon exhorted the people to stand by their guns, rise again and with a consciousness that this is the best state and section in the United States make ready for the presidency of the future and prepare for greater strides along educational and economic lines.

Franklin county high school and ninth district A. & M. school, of Clarksville, played football in the afternoon. The game resulted in a score of 29 to 6 in favor of Franklin county high school. Franklin county high school had not previously been crossed this season and the touchdown of A. & M. came in the last two minutes of play, after brilliant forward passes placed them in position to go over.

Dickson, DeFoor, Hall and Garrison starred for Franklin county high.

Mr. Hollomon again urged a continuance of the spirit of cooperation and courage in dealing with the economic situation occasioned by the drought and commended Franklin county on its splendid spirit as manifested by its school consolidations, good roads and other public enterprises.

He also spoke of the loss to northeast Georgia in the death of the late William D. Bowers, one of the best known and progressive business men of this section.

Work of the "Forward Atlanta" campaign will be discussed at a meeting of the American Business club Friday night at the Henry Grady hotel. G. A. Hoffman will preside.

Following the close of the discussion the club will hold its semi-annual election of officers. H. E. Steingel is president of the club, and E. O. Johnson is secretary.

In commenting on the order made public Tuesday by Judge W. D. Ellis, giving notice to attorneys that depositions taken in undefended divorce cases while the solicitor general was not present would be questioned, Solicitor General John A. Borkin announced Wednesday that the order would necessitate an appointment of a deputy solicitor.

The law requires that the solicitor general be present while depositions are taken.

"It would be an absolute impossibility for me to appear while depositions are being taken in undefended divorce cases," he said.

Recounting experiences of his recent world travels, Dr. Lucien Lamar Knight, state historian, Wednesday night declared at a meeting of the Burns club that should the much talked of "yellow peril" materialize, Japan could not withstand "the iron bulldogs of the United States for six months."

Japan is fast recovering from the havoc of the earthquake, business has revived and prosperity is everywhere to be seen, Dr. Knight said. Stating that America is being held up as a guiding light in China, he said that the opium traffic in that country has been stopped, although it still is being smuggled across the border from India.

Judge Richard B. Russell, president, acted as toastmaster, and Scotch songs were offered during the dinner by John McGrindle. The evening's entertainment concluded with the singing of "Auld Lang Syne."

Walter G. Cooper, prominent Atlanta and former secretary of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, is seriously ill at the residence, 157 Peoples street, as the result of injuries received in a fall last Wednesday.

Mr. Cooper fell near his home as he started to his automobile preparatory to driving to his office. He had been slightly ill for some days and his fall is believed to have been caused by dizziness, it is said.

OUTING OF PALMER.

The action of the United States shipping board in ousting Admiral Palmer from his position as head of the emergency fleet corporation was not unexpected. But for the determined fight of President Coolidge in Palmer's defense the action would probably have been taken several weeks ago.

The last move made by the president to steady a notoriously disjuncted situation was his appointment of H. G. Dalton, of Cleveland, to inquire into the relations existing between the United States shipping board and the emergency fleet corporation. These relations have long been severely strained. The fact is, since the board yielded to Mr. Coolidge's request that negotiations for the sale of ships be turned over to Admiral Palmer, it has overruled the latter on almost every occasion when he reported favorably upon bids for government ships. This it has done in spite of the president's approval of Admiral Palmer's policies to get the government out of the shipping business and to cut down overhead and operating expenses. In fact, a majority of the board sharply took issue with the president about the ability of Admiral Palmer to do the very work which Mr. Coolidge urged the board to let him undertake.

It will be recalled that the shipping board first suggested the recall of Admiral Palmer, as the head of the corporation. Palmer had the ear of the president. That much seems established. The whole affair had reached such a status that the southern member of the board resigned in order to fight the administration policy regarding the same.

A bill to transfer the emergency fleet corporation to the department of commerce has been drawn by Representative Bacon, of New York.

"It must be obvious," he has said, "that the private shipowner is not enthusiastic about conducting negotiations for the purchase of ships with a board of seven men who apparently never agree among themselves."

He believes, with the president, that Admiral Palmer has shown his fitness to operate ships and to negotiate for the sale of them:

"The present head of the fleet corporation has accomplished wonders, but has inevitably been hampered by the apparent jealousies and disagreements existing in the shipping board. He could accomplish far more if he were responsible only to the president through a member of his cabinet."

This is but one of many situations, as embarrassing as unfortunate, that will become real problems before congress in December. The New York Times says:

"By asking an able and impartial shipping man of the middle west to look up the record of transactions between the board and the fleet corporation to learn why they have been so much at odds and who is to blame for the cross-purposes and fruitless pressure Coolidge will obtain information upon which he can make recommendations to congress. The grounds upon which members of the board have been embarrassed and condemned Admiral Palmer will be disclosed."

The three democrats on the commission, including Thompson whose resignation had not been acted upon, voted for the ousting of Admiral Palmer and it took one republican vote to get a majority. The vice chairman, Plummer, supplied that vote.

The friction between the two wings that were supposed to coordinate in the administration and management of the nation's merchant marine had become so bitter that the efficiency of service had become necessarily embarrassed, and all to the final expense of the American taxpayers.

The fleet corporation, or its head specifically had been given such additional authority by congress through the president's influence that caustic jealousies were aroused and instead of cooperation and coordination continual scrapping and even disgusting cat-fighting resulted.

The whole muddle has illustrated most assuredly that government ownership of public utilities is not only not desirable, but is an eventuality to be sternly shunned. It should carry its lesson to some of the political agitators in America who have heretofore found entirely too much sympathy in some of the so-called democratic circles.

The new head of the fleet corporation, Elmer E. Crowley, of Massachusetts, is apparently a good transportation man, but readjustments of personnel will not and cannot straighten out the very embarrassing situation. The government should rid itself of the entire burden as quickly as practicable and Admiral Palmer possibly felt that way also, and too strongly to please the shipping board.

FAIR GATES OPEN.

When the gates of the Southeast fair swing open this morning the public will witness a veritable south-west exposition that will measure up in many respects to the most notable expositions held in this country in a generation.

The exhibits, valued at $5,000,000, are so varied, and of such astounding merit—particularly in the agricultural and livestock departments—that they place this year's fair in a class by itself, and against which the fairs of the past are not comparable.

The industrial exhibits are no less outstanding. The amusement features are of the highest order. The combination marks it as a whole as of peculiar educational and entertaining merit.

Interest of Georgians naturally center in the displays of Georgia products, whether of farm or factory commodities, and any Georgian who will study the exhibits will feel a deeper pride in the state, a deeper faith in her opportunities, and a deeper love for her people.

The fair should score a record attendance during its season. It challenges the hearty support of every Georgian, and especially every Atlanta.

In the meantime the fair directors and executives headed by Colonel Paxton, the fair commission headed by Henderson Hallman, Secretary Striplin and all associated in the great movement, deserve unabridged commendation for this year's really great feature.

THE OMAHA ADDRESS.

The president spoke wisely before the American legion convention at Omaha. If the attitude of the republican senators in 1919-20, and the attitude of the republican party leaders in the Cox-Harding campaign, and the attitude of the administration since March 4, 1921, had, any or all, shown a willingness to put into practice the ideals of leadership toward international peace to which the president now gives such sympathetic voice, the farm commodity depression of 1922-23 would have been escaped, and the situation with regard to world amity would now very probably have been in a more satisfactory condition.

Said the president at Omaha: "It seems clear that the result of the war will be lost and we shall only be entering a period of preparation for another conflict unless we can demolish the racial antagonisms, fears, hatreds and suspicions, and create an attitude of tolerance in the public mind of the peoples of the earth."

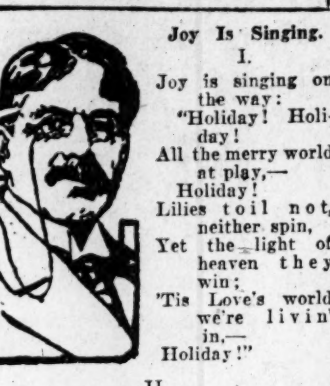

That sounds like a paragraph from one of the speeches of President Wilson when, on his last and fatal trip through the west, he pleaded for demobilization of naval antagonisms, fears, hatreds and so on, and the creation of a spirit of international tolerance—through the only agency ever set up for such a purpose. The president pleads for the ideals, but his party indorses a policy of isolation that makes it most difficult for the world to attain those ideals. The thought, therefore, in face of the republican policy regarding official international cooperation becomes a mere platitude.

His very commendable exhortation of the "wave of religious intolerance" which he finds is "sweeping the country" was invited possibly by the general impression that prevails that the alleged organized proponents of such intolerance aided and abetted the republican campaign in 1924 to no small degree, and therefore assisted materially in his election over the democratic nominee. It has even been charged that here and there some political debts incurred in that campaign have been paid. However that may be, and whatever may have been the president's motive in so emphatically renouncing the religious intolerance that is alleged to be so rampant in America, it must be agreed that his remarks defining his own position, even if late, were firm and unmistakable, and will carry cold comfort to those who feel otherwise, and who were so active in his campaign.

The address of Mr. Coolidge, in the whole, reads well. It was not as epigrammatic as his addresses to congress, and it very plainly demonstrated that he has drifted somewhat into the usual channels that holders of public office generally navigate.

Just From Georgia

BY FRANK L. STANTON

Joy Is Singing.
I.
Joy is singing on the way:
"Holiday! Holiday!"
All the merry world at play:
"Holiday! Holiday!"
Lilies toil not, neither spin,
Yet the light of heaven they win:
"Tis Love's world we're living in—
"Holiday!"

II.
How can Love's heart—ill content,
Sing that way
When the world calls for rent
Day by day?
Yet Joy heeds him not, but stands
With Love's lilies in his hand
Gives again his sweet commands:
"Holiday!"

III.
The Farm as an Advertiser.
The splendid success of south Georgia farms this year," says The Pearson Tribune, "has been heralded to the four corners of the country, and it has brought not only inquiries, but people have come to spy out the land. After all, the success of the farms must be the basis of south Georgia prosperity. The successful farm advertiser itself, people talk about it and soon spreads far beyond the community where it is located. The newspapers love to talk about it and give it the strength of the advertisement. The successful farmer is the community's best promoter and citizen. Let's have more of them in 1926. Come, let's go!"

IV.
A Georgia Love Song.
She's not a "dainty" vine—
This sweet little girl of mine,
Yet to me she clings,
And the song she sings
Lifts Love to the heights divine!
Lifts Love to the heights divine
When the stars in splendor shine,
For they've caught the gleam of her golden hair
When the kiss of her lover trembled
The world today,
And heaven itself to earth drew near
For this sweet little girl of mine!

V.
A Little Thrift Sermon.
(By the Columnist of The Tifton Gazette.)
Misfortune finds it hard to spank the man with money in the bank, and thus it's well to cultivate and carry out the saving trait.
A habit is a clank to make and very difficult to shake; so pick one that is sure to pay—and start to save—begin today.
He has of sense a good amount who banks upon a bank account for dollars wisely laid away increase in value every day.
To bank your cash is very wise, for then it grows and multiplies; your balance ever is at hand, when boosted up by interest.
The man who never saves a cent is always broke, or badly so; and then he's up against it right whenever trouble looms in sight.

VI.
The River.
Flow on majestic river—
In triumph to the sea—
Thy eddying whirlpools quiver
As they flow away from me.
Flowing, flowing, ever flowing, as life's ebb and flow,
Towards the distant shores of somewhere—somewhere, far away!
Atlanta.

The philosopher of The Griffin News observes that "when a man says he is a realist, he is a realist; but he finds that he must raise a rough house now and then."

VIII.
From a West Window.
"We have a liking for a house that faces the west," E. E. Jones, Jr., of The Garden City Herald, and he gives his reasons, as follows—
"East fronts may have their advantages, but the coming of twilight there is a feeling that a happy or contented day has ended all too soon. To sit on an east porch in the twilight is for the wife to come and live in memories; but the coming of the sunset has about it a pervading atmosphere of youth and hope. The fading sunset light and the hours of darkness for one who is full of the joy of living. And, too, however prosaic or even so, the evening of the day has been, almost any evening the soul may be exalted as nature paints her cloud pictures above the western horizon."

LIGHTS OF NEW YORK

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

New York, October 8.—They may be unskilled but they are eager; though jobs they are hopeful; this respectable-sized army of girls that invades New York week after week. They come from the most remote nooks of the country, and make the employment agencies their first call. Of course, ordinary stenography and typewriting are not exactly what they seek. They could have practiced at that art back home, so here they search for a position as hostess in a tea room, preferably in a Bohemian quarter. An employment agent on Seventh avenue tells me that he has at least five calls a day from young ladies who want to enter social service work. They have been moved to pity by the tales of squalor and misery in New York's East Side and have come to enlist in the forces of uplift and reform. A course in sociology in the college at home has equipped them with all the theoretical knowledge necessary and they only require an opportunity now to bring their pet notions into play and help to save humanity.

There isn't an employment agent who dares to offer a job dishwashing nowadays, but he has something that takes its place though it masquerades under a highly camouflaged title when he advises the young hopeful to better take that job of polishing chinaware and silver.

The girls must pay half of their first week's pay in advance to the agent for getting them the job. Of course they don't know what the job is like, because they haven't been to the place and they may feel that all their hopes, ambitions and illusions in life have been dashed to the ground when they behold the prospective place of employment and their employer, but that does not concern the agent. He exacts 10 per cent of their wages for the remaining three weeks of the first month in addition.

Nina Langley, veteran chorus girl who retired a few years ago to a farm in Jersey, was back in town the other day to cast a glance over the changing panorama of Broadway. "Times have changed," she mused back at her hotel after a first-night's survey. "There used to be a time, and so it was in my hey-day, that chorus girls didn't need to know a thing, but look engagingly and beautiful. I have talked with some of the fresh young things they have on Broadway now and I got the idea somehow that the modern chorus girl has a hard life. If she wants to stay in the front ranks she's got to study the new steps and wriggle that come out almost every second day. In my time, if you could kick nicely, you were considered a wonder."

The biologist may find in this a reversal of human practice, yet a harmonizing with the forces of nature. Beauty parlor experts will assure you that the male species is flocking to their emporiums in greater numbers each day. Men now have their eyebrows plucked, wrinkles smoothed out; they indulge in mud-packs, even like a tinge of rouge on their pale cheeks and must have their nails shiny like a couple of pink-shell pearls. From Paris comes word to the fashion houses that men are beginning to wear vanity cases. The historian may see a tendency to effeminacy in this, but the biologist will hasten to explain that in the animal world the male is always the most doped-up of the pair.

There is nothing so rural in New York as the pace of its street cars, the leisurely behavior of the conductors and motormen on these public conveyances and the Toomerlike incidents that occur on the average journey. Every passenger is greeted with a friendly smile and promptly engaged in conversation. The conversation is of the barbershop variety. The conductor feels called upon to pinch the cheeks of every youngster in mother's arms and the motorman turns his back upon the traffic at intersections to glance over the customers or engage in a long-distance colloquy with his partner. While the rest of New York is rushing and snorting on the earth, beneath the ground and in the sky, the trolley car has apparently been installed as a modicum where one can try out Solomon's wise saying, that patience is a beautiful thing.

Since his operation for appendicitis, Irving Cobb says he has regained an insatiable craving for southern cooking and especially bouillabaisse. For that reason he is migrating in the direction where the swallows go in the winter time.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

"Audacious" Peace Effort.
"Franco-German reconciliation is like the keystone of European civilization. Despite anger and bitterness, despite our unforgetting sorrow, such reconciliation is possible," said Premier Poincaré in a speech before the League of Nations conference, where "the most audacious effort for real peace" is to be made since the armistice. Mr. Poincaré with these words interprets the meaning of the popular elections of May, 1924, in France, which were won by M. Herriot on a platform of "a sincere desire for peace based solidly on justice." Fortunately, M. Poincaré and his foreign minister, M. Briand, are not alone in their desire for peace. The Germans have already signified their intention of not wishing to dispute the present status of the western frontier, though they want to leave the door open for discussion. It has taken the nations long to learn the lesson that cooperation is the only way to peace. The world is now in a better mood than it has been for many years. When at this stage of history France and Germany come together to offer peace, they hope to accomplish more than the settlement of the eastern frontier open for discussion. GENERAL HAGOOD ARRIVES FOR DUTY

Major General Johnson Hagood, successor to Major General Douglas MacArthur in command of the fourth corps army area, reported Wednesday for duty at headquarters offices in this city. He arrived at 3:55 o'clock and went immediately to his office.

General Hagood is a native southerner, having been born in South Carolina. Upon graduating at West Point in 1896, he was assigned to the artillery and served on various routine duties in that branch of the service, including the post of assistant to the chief of coast artillery until the world war.

He was sent to France in command of the seventh regiment, coast artillery corps, he organized and commanded the advance section, line of communications. He was later made chief of staff, and in 1918 was appointed by General Pershing as president of a board of officers to reorganize the staff of the American Expeditionary forces and create the service of supply. He became chief of staff of that latter organization, and served in this capacity until the armistice.

He was appointed a brigadier general in the regular army July 3, 1920, and upon his return to the United States served as commander of the thirtieth brigade, coast artillery corps, at Camp Elkins, Va.

General Hagood was recently in command of the second division, coast artillery district at Fort Totten, New York.

Be Anxious About Your Eyes!

Perhaps your vision will never need the care of an oculist, but how can you be completely sure?

Only by frequent tests. They should begin in early youth, and never be omitted as the years go on.

Anxiety about your eyesight is no confession of weak nerves. It is only the most commonsense precaution of all; and we will gladly help you take that precaution.

She Could Never Have Done It With Piles!

Bless the American girl who has glorified all the sports! She makes a pretty picture in the water, and is a plucky swimmer, too. Piles are unthinkable for active women. If you have them, you ought to know this simple thing to do!

At any hour of moment that you have the least distress or discomfort from piles, use a simple Pyramid pile suppository—and go happily on your way! The non-irritating, non-bleeding and badly protruding piles respond at once to the soothing suppository applied in perfect privacy. But bear the name in mind: Pyramid is the one every druggist has, usually the only one he will sell his patrons. Pyramid is marvelous. Why suffer another single half-hour with painful piles?

Sixty cents the box, the world around. But for proof, a free box plainly wrapped will be sent those who write Pyramid Drug Co., 200 Pyramid Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

TAX COLLECTIONS ARE IMPROVED

Indicative of more rigid enforcement of the tobacco stamp tax act and the motor vehicle registration act, State Revenue Collector John M. Vandiver announced Wednesday that collections under these two acts this year will greatly exceed the proceeds of last year.

The revenue department expects to collect $800,000 from the tobacco stamp tax, as compared with $730,241.11 last year, Collector Vandiver said.

"If we could have had amendments to the act passed at the last session of the legislature, the returns from tobacco sales would have been $1,000,000 for this year," he said.

Georgia automobiles are better tagged now than in five years, Mr. Vandiver said. "An automobile without a tag these days is rare. We are putting forward a great effort to round up delinquent motorists, and find that some otherwise law-abiding citizens evade the law by buying a tag for a low-priced car and placing it on a more expensive machine. We are making strenuous efforts to overcome this sort of violation."

Automobile registration collections have almost reached $3,000,000, lacking but $37,000 of this amount, where last year the registration was $2,500,000, he said.

FOUR ARE PLACED BEFORE GOVERNOR FOR ROME COURT

A four-cornered race for the judgeship of the Rome judicial circuit, made vacant Monday by the death of Judge Moses Wright, of Rome, developed Wednesday when it was learned that Alex Harris, Rome attorney, and James Maddox, solicitor of the Rome circuit, had made formal application for the post, and that friends of Judge W. J. Nunnally, former of the Rome city court, and Walter Shaw, LaFayette attorney, are seeking the appointment for them.

Governor Clifford Walker tendered the post to Edward Maddox, chairman of the state democratic executive committee, but Mr. Maddox declined.

The governor will take up the matter again when he reaches his office next week. He left Savannah Wednesday night for Washington to attend the world series games.

NEW SUBSIDIARY OF POWER COMPANY IS AUTHORIZED

Creation of the East Georgia Power company as a subsidiary of the Georgia Railway & Power company, authorization of discontinuance of certain trains and elimination of a few stations marked the session Wednesday afternoon of the Georgia public service commission.

The East Georgia Power company was formed to take over transmission lines between Toccoa and a point on the Savannah river, near Augusta. The commission authorized issuance of $100,000 in common stock and $1,000,000 in preferred stock. The Georgia Railway & Power company and its officials subscribed all the stock.

Permission was granted the N. C. & St. L. railway to discontinue trains numbers 5 and 6 running from Rome to Atlanta, and agreed to a revision of the schedule of trains 92 and 93, running from Kingston to Atlanta, so that stops formerly made by trains 5 and 6 could be made by the Kingston trains. This is effective November 1.

The Seaboard Air Line railway was allowed to discontinue the station at Cones, and the Southeastern Express company was allowed to discontinue the office at Ackert, but was denied authority to discontinue the offices of the company at Flippen.

The A. B. & A. will discontinue the station at McKay by order of the commission, and the Georgia railroad will take up a spur track at Thursday.

MULE IS BLAMED BY SUPREME COURT IN ACCIDENT CASE

Holding that a mule belonging to J. B. Johnson became frightened unnecessarily and was responsible for turning over a buggy in which Johnson and Mrs. Elizabeth Johnson were riding on Marietta road several months ago, the Georgia court of appeals Wednesday absolved the Georgia Railway and Power company of blame for the accident. This ruling reversed the decision of Cobb county superior court which had awarded Mrs. Johnson $250 damages.

Petitioners claimed that their mule became frightened at a pile of telephone poles and equipment and injured them when they were hurled from the buggy.

TUCKER'S CONDITION PRONOUNCED GRAVE

The condition of Henry H. Tucker, widely-known Atlanta whose skull was fractured Tuesday night in a fall on Pondera avenue, was pronounced as grave by surgeons at Grady hospital Wednesday night.

Mr. Tucker, who is 70 years old, was stooping as if to pick up something when he lost his balance and fell, according to information given police by witnesses. He had not regained consciousness Wednesday night.

Slight improvement in the condition of Harold Kidd, 16-year-old Howard theater employee, was noted by surgeons at the Grady hospital Wednesday, and they expressed the belief that he now will recover, unless unforeseen complications set in.

KIDD MAY RECOVER, SURGEONS ASSERT

Kidd was injured early Tuesday when the automobile he was driving crashed into a telephone pole on Irwin street. The wreck was caused, it was stated, by Kidd dodging a motor truck that darted into Irwin street from a side street.

JACKETS HOLD SCRIMMAGE ON EVE OF DEPARTURE

Starting Lineup of V. M. I. Game To Oppose Nittany Lions at Kickoff Saturday

BY GEORGE CONGDON.

The Golden Tornado of Georgia Tech—football missionary from the south—starts at noon today on its 1925 invasion of the regions to the north when 34 Yellow Jackets, Coaches Alexander and Fincher, and a score of camp followers hop the Southern's Crescent Limited for New York and the annual battle with Penn State.

The Jackets will ride the cars for more than 24 hours, getting in New York shortly after noon Friday. Then they will have a brief limbering up workout at the Yankee Stadium where a gridiron has been laid off diagonally across Babe Ruth's playground.

While in the big town the Tech outfit will be quartered at the Commodore hotel.

Final practice on Grant field was held yesterday afternoon by the Jackets, playing defensively in scrimmage against the scrubs, using Penn State offensive plays. There was plenty of action in the scrimmage and Samuel Murray, who has succeeded Wycoff as a fullback since the captain has taken to a halfback position, purveyed some of the most cruel blocking that has echoed across the Tech plot in some time. Every time the scrubs tried to come over center, Murray tore into the line, there was a dull thud and the whole works swayed scrubward a couple of yards.

The same starting lineup that opened the V. M. I. game will be sent against the Nittany Lion in New York. It will be Merkle and Marshall, ends; Tharpe and Carpenter, tackles; Godwin and Forrester, guards; Poole, center; Williams, quarterback; Captain Wycoff and Barron, halfbacks, and Sam Murray, fullback.

Several affairs have been planned for the Tech outfit when it reaches New York. One of the big events will be a dinner Friday given by Jesse Isidor Straus, president of the R. H. Macy company, recently affiliated with Davison-Paxon-Stokes company of Atlanta. A number of eastern football stars of the past and present will attend the dinner.

S. I. A. A. Crown Involved In Petrel-Centre Contest

BY ALTON REDFEARN.

Tomorrow afternoon's workout will bring to a close the preparation period of the Oglethorpe Petrels for their tie-up with the Centre Colonels Saturday afternoon at Spiller's field—the only football attraction for Atlanta this week-end.

The winner of Saturday's struggle will be in the running for the S. I. A. A. championship and the consensus of opinion has it that the victor will be as good as won the highly coveted laurels. It will be a great battle, a fight between two small schools, and a fight for supremacy in the S. I. A. A.

Word was received in the Petrel camp yesterday that a light but fast team will represent Centre; all the more reason why it should be one of the best games in the south, as the Petrel machine is light also.

In Cheo, Centre has a triple threat man. He is rather big for a back, an excellent kicker and passer, and is fast and shifty. In the two games played by Centre thus far, he has been the shining light of their offense and reports have it that he can play a good defensive game.

This afternoon's practice will begin a little late. The Junior Petrels will play the University School for Boys at 2 o'clock on Hermance field, therefore practice will be halted until after the game. The University School meets the freshman several former Coach Robertson is still looking for a backfield combination. "Stout" drill.

Forbes Field Difficult.
Tech Chances Good.
Petrels Vs. Centre.

ANYTHING that could be said of Walter Johnson already has been said, for his greatness and his devotion to the American league baseball club have extended over a long period of years. Therefore, it probably would be boring to repeat here what has so often been blazoned in the public prints.

This year, however, the old warhorse faced the Pittsburgh Pirates for the first time in his career and pitched in a baseball park entirely strange to him, yet his mighty right arm whizzed baseballs by the Pirates with its customary deadliness and the whopping throng of Pirate fans disturbed him not.

FORBES field is a difficult one for a baseball team not accustomed to it. The stands are the highest in the major leagues and sections of temporary seats have banked it with a wall of humanity, confusing and disturbing as members of the Crackers who remember their Fort Worth experience will testify.

So Walter's victory of Wednesday over the National league champions means something, after all. He has started the Senators on their way to another world's championship and he undoubtedly will be called upon to pitch one more of the ball games. There is no need to ask for three cheers for the big Swede. He has them.

GEORGIA TECH's great football team will be on its way to New York today and they meet Penn State at the Yankee stadium Saturday in a gridiron battle which promises to be one of the best of the year.

In Atlanta we have heard of a betting being done with regard to the outcome of this contest and one man, we heard, was offering even money and giving Tech 12 points the best of the score. How does he get that way? We rashly rush into prediction with the assertion that Penn State will be very lucky to escape defeat by a margin almost as great.

WHAT is more interesting right at the moment, however, is that Centre and Oglethorpe will be at it on Spiller's field while Tech is striving against Penn State.

The game in New York will be no whit better than the Atlanta contest, for it brings together two teams of great caliber and spectacular performance. Centre is the football champion of the south, having acquired the laurels last fall by running all over Alabama and Georgia. Oglethorpe has a splendid football team this year and will be no doormat for the Kentuckians, and you may be sure of that.

NOT much has been heard of Centre this year, largely because of the indefiniteness of knowledge with regard to her new material. Covering is gone—the last of the famous players who electrified the country several years ago. Others have come to take their places on that great team, but just what they can do is a problem unsolved as yet.

Rabenstein is a good football player and he is back in the backfield, but the others are a little beyond our ken. Everyone knows the capabilities of the Oglethorpe squad. It is full of dynamite and good football.

'Bucky' Thrilled as Walter Rose To Superb Heights

BY STANLEY (BUCKY) HARRIS.

Manager and Second Baseman World Champion Washington Club.

(Copyright, 1925, by North American Newspaper Alliance.)
Pittsburg, October 7.—I am a happy man today, not only because Washington won the opening game of the world series, but also because I have associated with me in a professional way such a great pitcher as Walter Johnson. It is difficult for me to find words with which to express how wonderful it is to be manager of a baseball club that has in its membership a remarkable moundman like that grand old fellow.

I was just as much thrilled by Walter's wonderful work in our 4-to-1 victory over the Pirates as by the victory. Never before had I seen Johnson in such splendid form and I have watched him on many other great days, too. He was absolutely "right" as the 10 strikeouts he achieved indicated. And the Pirates certainly had to work to get those five hits.

If Stanley Coveleskie is in anything approaching the form that Johnson displayed in the opener, Washington will make it two straight over Pittsburg. I am confident. The veteran pitcherballer is to start in the second engagement and he'll be troublesome to the Pirates.

That inaugural contest certainly was great. While Walter's splendid effort overshadowed everything else that occurred, much credit is due others, who, by their sturdy performance, helped the Washington cause.

Rice Showed Nerve.
Sam Rice had to have an iron nerve to make that single in the fifth inning that drove two runs home, after we had filled the bases with three successive blows. Lee Meadows took Muddy Ruel and Walter Johnson over the jumps, whiffing both.

And he had two strikes against Rice also. The issue was squarely up to Sam then and he met it manfully. When Rice's smash went over second base to center field and those two runs were registered, I felt that the game was "in" so far as we were concerned. With Johnson getting better by the minute, I was absolutely certain that the Pirates would not dent him seriously and those two runs backing up the one Joe Harris got with his homer to right center field in the second inning looked as large as mountains.

The Senators played with usual steadiness, supporting Johnson in good form. The only error made was that by Roger Peckinpaugh and that wild throw of his after fielding Grant-ham's easy roller in the fifth did not come at a critical moment. As a matter of fact there were few critical moments for us. Walter was pitching so well that all the men back of him had an easy afternoon.

Joe Harris was especially good in right field during the first eight innings, but I changed my outfield combination for the ninth inning to put more speed into it. I wanted an especially tight defense then and the club had just that. Earl McNeely, who went to center after Rice was shifted to right to replace Joe Harris, made a fine catch at the expense of "Pie" Traynor, who proved the toughest man in the Pirate lineup for Johnson.

I want to congratulate the Pirates for their brave showing. The work of Traynor, Wright and Grantham on defense was extraordinary. Wright was one of the greatest shortstops I have ever seen and those dazzling stops by Traynor and Grantham kept down the Washington hit total.

Grantham's grab of Goslin's smash in the fourth was every bit as marvelous as Traynor's diving catch of Ruel's line in the third. Lee Meadows was brilliant in his pitching frequently. But he was unfortunate enough to be opposed to a hurler that had mastered any rival in the National league. Johnson is difficult to beat when only in his average form.

In the form he flashed in the first game of the series, the opposing pitcher had not the slightest chance of victory.

Thompson, Smith, Moore, Kilpatrick May Be Out Of Conflict With Yale

BY MARCUS BRYANT.

Athens, Ga., October 7.—(Special.)—Thirty-one members of the Georgia football team will board the Southern train Thursday, beginning their third invasion of New Haven, where they play the Yale Bulldogs Saturday in their only inter-sectional game.

The men making the trip follow: Forbes, Butler, Shiver, centers; Hand, Gene Smith, Eubanks, Weaver and Leffler, guards; Lucke, Rogers, Carmichael, Huff, Bacon, Morris, tackles; Captain Thompson, Curran, Van-ziesen, Woodall, Nash and Levie, ends; Moore, Hollis, Broadax, quarterbacks; Morton, Kain, McTigue, Hatcher, Sherlock, halfbacks; Nelson, Boland, Dowis, fullbacks.

Coaches Woodruff, Mehr and Crowley accompanied the team, as did Dr. S. V. Sanford, faculty director of athletics, "Kid" Lavigne, trainer, and Student Manager Sam Wood.

"Buster" Kilpatrick was unable to make the trip, an injury received in the Virginia game giving him a setback to the crumple list. His absence will be severely felt.

Captain "Smack" Thompson, Gene Smith and "Scrappy" Moore, though making the trip, are not in good condition and there is doubt that they will be able to play. Tom Nelson and Fred Hand's condition are not the best in the world either.

The Bulldogs scrimmaged practically the whole of Wednesday afternoon, as their final work on home soil.

Devereaux Bacon and Tom Nash have been showing up well at practices this week, at tackle and end respectively. Willie Hatcher's work has drawn much comment in the backfield. Arriving at Yale in the morning, the squad will make the picket line of the journey on the Piedmont limited, arriving in New Haven at noon Friday, and going through a final drill before the game in the bowl that afternoon.

HOREY HERE WORLD FLYING FOR FAIR RACES

One of the big features of the automobile race program which is to be held Friday and Saturday of this week at the Southern fair will be a junk car racing race, one of the most unique events in motordom.

All cars which are entered in the event will be local entries and made up of cars that must be offered for sale for one hundred dollars or less at the close of the race. The event will be for two miles and all Atlanta will have a chance to see the south's supply of twenty-year-old models in full force all gathered together and combined in an automobile racing mass Saturday.

Manager Striplin announced last night that judging from the way the Southeastern fair program was shaping up, the automobile racing days, Friday and Saturday, should embody the greatest two days of thrills ever set for the local course.

Fred Horey, former dirt-track champion of the world, who is to be matched against Johnny Watters, lead-footed Chicago speedster, and Louis Disbrow, grand old man of the dirt tracks, hailed as one of the greatest drivers who ever trod on the throttle of a high-powered racing car, arrived in town yesterday afternoon from Memphis where he has been taking part in the fair speed events.

Horey has already been awarded the Canadian title as a result of wins at Regina Sask, Calgary and Edmonton, Alberta and Brandon, Manitoba. Second place was awarded to Burr Lampkin, who confined his activities to eastern Canadian tracks.

Three races are scheduled for tomorrow, two being free-for-all races for civilians in open, different carrying capacity, with prizes of $2,500 in each, and the third being the Liberty engine builders' trophy race for two-engine observation planes for military flyers only.

The civilian races are to be 20 times around a five-mile course. In the military race the planes will go 15 times around a course of 12 miles. Captain Rene Fonck, French aviator, credited with 75 enemy planes during the war arrived in New York and it was said that he would fly an American plane in one of the races.

Mitchell Field, N. Y., October 7.—(AP) Aviation's internationally known celebrities were either at this flying center or headed this way by train and plane today for the national air races which open tomorrow with military and civilian flyers participating in what may be the largest air meet in history.

Five hundred planes are expected to bring army and navy aviators and civilians from various parts of the country.

Civilians in an "on to New York" race ending today furnished the preliminary to a three-day racing program of 10 events which starts tomorrow and winds up with the Pulitzer speed classic Saturday afternoon.

Forty-six flyers entered the "On to New York" race from which army, navy and air-mail pilots were excluded. The entrants were from such widespread points as Concord, N. H.; Lakeland, Fla.; Temple, Texas; Santa Monica, Calif.; Duluth and Cleveland.

The winner is determined on the basis of total points computed for average speeds, distances covered, passengers carried and engine horsepower. Eight prizes totalling $3,000 are offered.

MARIST PREPS FOR 2ND GAME

Marist's Blue Cadets will hold their final workout this afternoon in preparation for their second game of the season Friday afternoon with the Cartersville high school, according to announcement from Coach Joe Benn.

Coach Benn allowed that he would only require his men to step through a light signal drill and brush up a few of his players on the finer points of Marist's offensive. The Blue Cadets held a couple of scrimmages this week and as the squad came through the opening game with Sixth District Aggies last Saturday in fine physical condition the squad is in good shape for this game.

Cartersville is reported to have one of the strongest teams in its immediate neighborhood and the Marist eleven will have to be on edge to take this contest. Coach Benn announced that he would use the same lineup that started against the Aggies last Saturday.

G. M. A. TO PLAY WINDER SATURDAY
The game with Winder High school, which is the opener of G. M. A.'s football bill and which has been previously announced as scheduled for Friday afternoon, has been postponed until Saturday. The affair will take place on the G. M. A. field, and play will start at 8 o'clock.

Coach Morrow's men have been holding two practices daily recently in a determined effort to smooth out all the kinks before starting the season. An early morning signal drill of half an hour has been found very effective in perfecting the machine work, most of the afternoon practices being given over to heavy work and scrimmages.

Campbell, fullback is out of the game with a pulled muscle, and Cade, halfback is also out. Four men are now incapacitated.

JOHNSON RECALLS GLORY OF YOUTH IN VICTORY

Pirate Attack Manacled
By Speed King; J. Harris,
Traynor Hit Home Runs

BY GENE KESSLER.

Sports Editor, Washington News.

Forbes Field, Pittsburgh, October 7.—Walter Johnson waited 19 years to shine throughout a world series game.

He carried the 41,360 partisan baseball fans assembled here Wednesday afternoon back to the days of his youth as he toyed with their Pirates, pitching the Senators to a 4-to-1 victory in the opening contest of the 1925 world's championship. Walter allowed but five scattered hits, no two in one frame, and fanned ten batters. He simply manacled the Buccaneers' attack with his assortment of smoke and curve ball pitching.

Temporary bleacher seats in right field cheated him of a shutout. Pie Traynor, the gangling and dazzling third baseman of the Bucs, smashed the ball into the laps of the customers there for the lone Pittsburgh score. That was in the fifth.

Joe Harris, who was presented with a diamond ring by the people of his native neighborhood in the Pennsylvania coal mining region, reciprocated by poling out the other homer of the game, a drive into the temporary stand in right center. It was the first score of the contest.

Lee Meadows, starting Pittsburgh flinger, was brilliant in spots. He received great defensive support. The fielding of the Pirate infield was spectacular throughout.

The series popped open with an auspicious start. Only one batter reached first base in the initial inning, the two pitchers taking no time to settle to their task. Max Carey was hit on the right elbow with a smoke ball which might have affected his arm later on. Anyway, he made a feeble throw in the ninth inning and let Goslin score on Bluege's short single to center.

In the first inning Johnson probably took the heart out of the Pirate offense when he fanned Kiki Cuyler, siege gun of the club, on four pitched balls.

Both pitchers allowed hits in the second rounds, but J. Harris' homer came off Meadows while the Pittsburgh effort ended with Traynor's single. Johnson fanned Grantham in this inning.

Rice stepped into a curve ball for a single in the third but was nipped off the bag by Meadows, who crossed up a Washington hit-and-run signal in making the play. It was in this inning that Pie Traynor sprayed full length on the ground to spear Ruel's liner for the first sensational stop of the game.

In the fourth, George Grantham almost duplicated Traynor's act when he made a diving catch of Goslin's low liner and turned it into a double play. Again the hit-and-run had failed.

Cuyler got his only hit of the game in this inning, when he bounced a single over the box. He was caught off first and run down when Barnhart missed a strike with the hit-and-run play on trap.

Wright had to hurry his throw after making a great stop of J. Harris' grounder in the fifth and it went for a hit. That started the Senators on their winning rally. Bluege and Peck followed with singles to fill the bases with now out. Meadows fanned Ruel and Johnson. He got two strikes on Rice when Sam smashed out the big hit of the day. Though it was only a grounder past second for the single two runs came over.

In this same frame the Pirates let an apparent fly to the chin in the form of Mr. Traynor's home-run clout. Following this Peck made a high throw for the only error of the game allowing Grantham to reach first. He stole second but watched Meadows fan for the third out.

Meadows stopped the Senators for the next three frames, only to give way to a pinch hitter, Stuffy McInnis, in the eighth after Earl Smith had crashed out a line single. Bigbee ran for Earl, but Johnson struck out Stuffy.

Johnny Morrison was pitching when the Griffs got their run in the ninth. Goslin opened with a lucky Texas leaguer to left and Judge sacrificed him to second from where he scored on Bluege's single to center.

GRANDFATHER OF JOHNSON IS DEAD.

Santa Monica, Cal., October 7.—While Walter Johnson was pitching the first victory for the Washington Senators in the world series, preparations were being made for the funeral of his grandfather, John L. Perry, who died Tuesday night at the age of 82.

The baseball hero's aged kinsman was a keen baseball fan and had been looking forward to reading of his grandson's part in Wednesday's game. Death came suddenly from gastritis.

WOMAN HEADS
BLEACHER FANS

Pittsburgh, Pa., October 7.—(AP)—Ending a long vigil in the chilly night air, several thousand fans headed by a woman, Mrs. James Lauck, of Wellsburg, West Virginia, swarmed into the unreserved bleachers of Forbes field today as the gates were opened for the first game of the world series.

Mrs. Lauck, the first woman to take her place in line, appeared outside the ball park at 11 o'clock last night. Already several hundred persons had started the long wait and without objection from those farther back in line Mrs. Lauck was given the first position.

R. S. Crabtree, of Columbus, Ohio, who originally headed the procession, fell back into second place. A number of other women waited all night for preferred seats in the bleachers.

So effective was Johnson against the sluggers of Bill McKechnie, that outside of "Pie" Traynor, who slapped out a home run, only three Pirates got as far as second base and none reached third.

The "Big Smoke" fanned 10 Pirates, Cuyler, Barnhart and Wright succumbing twice each by this route. Only Moore, Traynor and Bluege, of the regulars, escaped the humiliating effect of Walter's deceptive offerings.

Stanley Harris showed a nifty piece of baseball strategy when he ordered Johnson to pass Meadows in the third. The bespectacled tapper was passed in first with one down, and was forced to run the pail when Moore hit into a double play. This effort evidently had its effect on Meadows, for he cracked in the fifth, and four singles, three of them in a row, netted the world's champions a pair of counters.

Max Carey will be lucky to last the series. The veteran outfielder caught the full smoke of Walter's fast one in his right elbow in the first inning and went down for nine. Walter found his other elbow in the ninth, but Max came up smiling from this one, with the remark that Walter was evidently losing his speed.

Joe Harris and "Pie" Traynor divided the batting laurels. Each poled out a home run and a single in four times up. Sam Rice garnered a pair of singles for a .500 average, while Oscar Blue split his hits with his strikeouts for a .500 mark.

Grantham's catch of Goslin's screaming liner in the fourth, which resulted in a double play, was the most scintillating piece of fielding during the game. The former Cub made a swan dive to the right and speared the drive, doubling Manager Harris at first. Traynor almost matched this achievement when he committed a larceny on "Muddy" Ruel's liner a foot inside third base. Both exhibitions gave the Pirates' rooters a chance to applaud, and they did it spontaneously.

The press box was choked with players who turned scribers for the series. John McGraw, Hans Wagner, Ty Cobb and Babe Ruth all squatted in the free section to analyze the game from a technical viewpoint.

Stuffy McInnis' role in the opening game was as brief as Walter Johnson could possibly make it. The former Philadelphia and Boston initial sacker came up in the ninth swinging a bludgeon for Meadows. The big smoke

MELANCHOLY NORSE BAFFLED
HE WON GAMES WHEN ROOSEVELT WAS PRESIDENT
YOUNG PIRATES WITH EASE

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Pittsburgh, October 7.—Walter Johnson's birth certificate is a rare old print like the Magna Charta, an autographed copy of the Iliad or an original playbill of Abie's Irish Rose. But the record of his greatest achievement is a fresh document, still fragrant of ink and still hot from the friction of the gears that kicked it from the press and scattered it to millions of hands in all quarters of the United States about sundown Wednesday afternoon.

This record assured that the melancholy Norse, who has been pitching for the Washington club since Roosevelt was president, beat the Pittsburgh Pirates in the opening game of the 1925 world series by a score of 4-to-1 and struck out 10 hitters in the most violent clique of batters in the country.

Johnson did it so easily, with so little grunting and wrenching, with such casual grace, that the baffled young athletes of the happened and how, and are willing to believe the Swede was doing parlor magic on the grass plot called Forbes field.

Having clubbed the pitchers of their own league all season, the Pirates had some cause to think they would whale their way through the world series and spatter the outfield crowd with homers from all quarters, including the Scandinavian's.

But somehow it didn't happen to happen that way. The Norse was something they ate. More probably it was something that Johnson ate when he was a clod-hopping kid, expanding to lung capacity in the wide open spaces of Kansas, and building a frame that would stand the shocks and strains of 19 years in the large leagues of the national games.

It's not easy to go on in this wild-eyed manner about Johnson's pitching because he made his work look so easy and asked so little assistance from his own arm. He was scattered hither and yon in expectant postures, ready to turn in flip-flops or dive over the fences as fielders often have to do in world series games. The Swede just went out there and threw the ball. Sometimes he brought that right arm sweeping around fairly fast at his own head, but he never let the plate like the shadow of a bird. Other times he just waved the arm gently and the ball walked up doing most of its own work in a gale, which was novel behavior considering that Walter Johnson has always been known as a fellow who didn't do much but throw the ball.

Fancy Fielding. Lee Meadows, the only pitcher in the big leagues who wears spectacles and who is a native of this country, was at home in the game. He was without an elephant in no circus and a world series game without at least one trapeze performance is just a game of the world series.

Traynor took the air first, leaving his bat with a pretty flit of his cleats and gloving a drive from Muddy Ruel in the third inning. Ruel was out before Traynor hit the ground and the putout became permanent when Pie, after a graceful burned over a trio and "Stuffy" spun thrice and sat down.

Meadows almost pulled out of his trouble in the fifth. With the bases saturated with Washington runners, he fanned Ruel and Johnson in quick order, but Sam Rice upped the goggled hurler with a neat single which scored a pair of runs.

Commissioner Landis watched the game from a box from the third base side with his veteran chin resting comfortably on a pair of official fists. A high four was the only factor which caused the baseball generalissimo to shift his position to save his official chin from a baseball trademark.

The Senators' first hit was a home run from Joe Harris' bat. It struck the top of the gate between the temporary stands in right center and Pittsburgh players said that it would have been good for three bases had the new structures not been there.

"Muddy" Ruel failed on several occasions to hold the shoos of Johnson, yet not once did his erring permit Pittsburgh to gain a base.

There is something unusual for world series play in the fact that two men of speed, Rice, of Washington, and Cuyler, of Pittsburgh, were trapped off first base in one game. Meadows caught the flat-footed and Ruel returned the jab with Cuyler as the victim.

Carey failed to lift his bat from his shoulder while Johnson shot across three "hooks" in the fourth.

Peckinpah appeared to have little trouble with his weak ankle, but he was only one of the contest, an overthrow on Grantham in the fifth.

"I don't want to have my picture taken with those two old men," said Babe Ruth as photographers lined him up with Babe Adams and Johnson before the contest. One of them proved later that he is not so old.

After 16 years Tyrus Cobb, of Detroit, returned to Forbes field. In 1909 he was one of the Detroiters fighting vainly for the world's title. Now he is covering the series for newspapers. Two seats away from Cobb sat an old foe, Honus Wagner, Pittsburgh's great shortstop of years ago.

seemed that this was to be denied to "Barney" when the Giants beat him in his first two starts, after which he came back to gain his glory by pitching the decisive part of the final game. Today, Johnson carried on where he left off last October but this time he had his full measure of triumphant achievement. The years had rolled back for his good right arm and he was the Barney of old, a bit seasoned and more resourceful, but showing the same effectiveness of his prime.

Johnson towered above everything else in today's game. The courageous pitching of his rival, Meadows; the sparkling fielding of the Pirates, particularly by Traynor and Grantham; the heavy hitting of Rice, Joe Harris and Bluege; the colorful enthusiasm of the vast crowd, witnessing its first home world series struggle in 16 years; the return of the old stars of those halcyon days—Wagner, Fred Clarke, Babe Adams—all this paled beside the dominating force of Johnson.

But the "big train" needed all his cunning to turn back this spectacular young Pirate hand and he was well supported by his own mates, who again demonstrated their ability as a combination at its best at the big moment.

J. Harris Batting Star. Joe Harris, whose bat was added this season to the Washington attack, would have shared almost equally with Johnson in the day's honors, had Barney been able to avert Traynor's home run and the only Pirate run. For it was Harris, succeeding Earl McNeely in the outfield, who banged out a home run that put the Senators in the lead and it was the same Harris who started the fifth inning rally and paved the way for the decisive batting stroke of the game—a slashing single by Sam Rice with the bases full and two out that brought over a brace of runs and clinched the battle.

Rice's smash was the climax of the game's most dramatic moment and came just as it seemed that Meadows, twirling with all the skill at his command, seemed about to pitch himself out of his worst hole.

It looked like Meadows' finish in this inning when Joe Harris, Bluege and Peckinpah rattled off singles in quick succession to fill the bases with none out, but the bespectacled veteran steadied in the crisis and fanned Ruel and Johnson in quick order. There was a deafening roar from the crowd when Rice swung and missed the first pitched ball, marking the seventh successive strike scored by Meadows. A wide one, then a second strike came over but Rice caught the next one and shot it over second, just out of the reach of flying Eddie Moore.

Damage Already Done. Joe Harris and Bluege crossed the plate and Johnson was quickly retired Stanley Harris for the third out, then turned the Senators back in order through the next three innings, the big damage had been done. There was a final sortie in the ninth, when Goslin, facing Morrison, singled, was sacrificed by Judge and scored on Bluege's second hit, but was an anti-climax. Except for Traynor's homer in the fifth and their eleventh hour threat in the ninth, the Pirates were easily subdued. The National leaguers had their chances to break through, for Carey twice got to after left field hit by pitched balls, Meadows walked on Johnson's only pass and Grantham got to first on a wild throw by Peck in the fifth, but Johnson and his mates put up an insurmountable barrier.

Defensive laurels, however, for the most part belonged to the Pirates, with attacking honors going to Washington, where pre-season predictions had largely been based on a reverse situation. Traynor and Grantham particularly shone in the field for the Buccaneers, the former making a remarkable diving catch of a line drive by Ruel that cut off at least a two-base hit, while Grantham, seared Goslin's smoking wallop in the fourth and converted it into a double play with Stanley Harris far off base.

The Pirates' much vaunted speed, too, was mostly checked although Grantham did steal second in the fifth. But Carey was nipped by Ruel trying to pilfer in the first inning and Cuyler, another speed merchant, was trapped and run down off first in the fourth inning.

Tomorrow Washington will send its other right handed ace, Stanley Coveleskie, to the mound in an effort to make it two straight while the Pirates are expected to rely on Vic Aldridge, another starboard moundsman.

skill. For on the mound he was a master craftsman, the most consummate and brilliant artist of all time, in the opinion of many of the game's closest students.

"Big Six"—a sobriquet contracted from "Big Six-ooter"—started his major league career with the New York Giants in 1900, and it was during his 17 seasons with that club that he carved a lasting niche for himself in the twilight of fame. Later, he became manager for two and one-half years of the Cincinnati Reds; served as a captain in the chemical warfare arm of the American expeditionary forces during the world war; returned from the service to rejoin his old teammates, the Giants, as a coach; and retired from the game temporarily in 1920, when his health was dangerously impaired. He came back, again hale and hearty, in February, 1923, to accept the presidency and part-ownership of the Boston Nationals.

Graduate of Bucknell.

A graduate of Bucknell college, where he was both a football and baseball star, Mathewson broke into the professional game with the Taunton, Mass., club of the New England league in 1899, receiving a salary of $80 a month for the first season. He lost his first start with a score of 6-to-5 to the Manchester, N. H., club. During the season, he won but two and lost nine games, lack of control—a fault he did not overcome for several years—handicapping his effectiveness.

Mathewson, however, was not long in attracting major league attention. Playing with Norfolk, in the Virginia league, in 1900, he won 21 out of 23 games, and was obtained by the Giants, who turned him back, after a brief tryout, for more seasoning with the southern club. Later the same year, he was drafted by Cincinnati, but soon afterward was sent to the Giants in a deal by which the Reds secured Amos Rusie.

McGraw Takes Him in Hand. Matt's first major league appearance was in the role of relief pitcher in a game lost by the Giants to Brooklyn. He had but indifferent success as a pitcher and utility player until 1902, when John McGraw succeeded Horace Fogel as manager of the Giants. "Big Six" was playing first base at the time, but McGraw quickly recognized his pitching ability, and took him in hand. His strides toward greatness dated from that period.

Feats of pitching brilliance too numerous to catalogue filled Matt's record during the dozen years in which he ranked consistently among the most effective twirlers in the major leagues. He was a prominent factor in the pennant victories of the Giants in 1904, 1905, 1911, 1912 and 1913; he twirled two no-hit games, one against the St. Louis Cardinals in 1901, and the second against the Chicago Cubs in 1905. He held jointly with "Cy" Young and Grover Cleveland Alexander a major league record of winning more than 30 games three seasons in a row. In 1905, he won 34 games, lost 11, and pitched three shut-out victories against the Philadelphia Athletics.

LOSES BRIEF FIGHT AGAINST PNEUMONIA

McGraw ranks Mathewson's feat in the 1905 series as the greatest in his memory. All five games in that series were shutouts. Joe McGinnity twirling the fourth victory for the Giants, while "Chief" Bender blanked the Giants for the only triumph scored by the Mackmen.

Lost Two Big Games. Mathewson had the misfortune to lose two of the most important games of his career, the play-off contest with the Chicago Cubs for the pennant in 1908, and the deciding game of the world's series with the Boston Red Sox in 1912. Breaks of the game played a big part in both defeats. In 1908, the deciding game of the world's series, Mathewson was blamed for the defeat by the Cubs, while a costly error by Fred Snodgrass turned the tide in the struggle with the Red Sox.

Mathewson suffered a shoulder injury in 1914 which virtually ended his career as a regular on the mound. He pitched infrequently thereafter and persuaded McGraw to let him go to Cincinnati during the middle of 1916 to fulfill his managerial ambition. In the deal by which Matty went to the Reds the Giants also gave Eddie Roush and William McKechnie in exchange for "Black" Herzog, retiring Cincinnati leader, and Wade Kilgus.

The Reds finished last in 1916, but improved rapidly under Matty's leadership, landing fourth place in 1917 and third place the following year, his last with the club.

Mathewson responded to the call to war at the close of the abbreviated season of 1918 and served with distinction overseas. He returned to become a coach with the Giants, holding that post until 1920, when he became serious ill from the effects of being "gassed" during the war and faced a battle for his life with tuberculosis.

Wins Battle for Health. Displaying the courage which won him many diamond victories, Matty fought hard and apparently won the battle for his health, during nearly three years of treatment at Saranac Lake, N. Y. Pronounced practically cured, he returned to New York in the fall of 1922 to witness the world's series triumph of his old teammates, the Giants, over the New York Yankees.

Early in 1923, an old friend and admirer, Emil E. Fuchs, prominent New York attorney, engineered a deal by which a New York syndicate obtained control of the Boston Braves from George V. Grant, and "Big Six" was persuaded to take the club presidency.

Mathewson, baseball experts agreed, possessed all the attributes of a brilliant moundman as well as those of a great athlete—natural skill, keen knowledge of the sport, generalship and coolness under fire. One of the most popular figures in the history of the game, among players and fans alike, "Big Six" also was a hero and idol to the army of youthful followers of the national pastime.

Tribute to McGraw.

"Matty was without a peer, either before or since the days he was at the height of his greatness," declared McGraw at one time in paying tribute to the pitcher.

"He had a greater variety of stuff than any pitcher I ever knew or handled," he continued. "His fast ball was the equal of Walter Johnson's or Amos Rusie's; his curve rivalled Nap Rucker's; he had the 'fadeaway' down to perfection, and he utilized his knowledge of batsmen with greater effect than any twirler in the game. He possessed wonderful control, remarkable fielding ability and was one of the finest sportsmen the game has ever known."

Old Soldier's License Is Not Transferable, High Court Decides

Sustaining a decision of the Atlanta police court in finding Z. V. Lacy $25, the Georgia court of appeals Wednesday upheld the ordinance specifying that a free business license granted to a war veteran cannot be transferred or sold.

Lacy acquired the license from W. D. Glenn, a Confederate veteran, and carried on a wage and salary loan business, it was alleged. Glenn had been an inmate of the almshouse for some time, although Lacy claimed to be working for him, according to the evidence.

A United States department of public works with a cabinet officer, to handle all government non-military construction, was endorsed.

SCHOOL GIRL DIES OF AUTO INJURIES

Moultrie, Ga., October 7.—(Special.)

After being run down and injured by an automobile, Martha Whitley, 15-year-old Moultrie high school girl, died tonight at a local hospital without regaining consciousness. K. T. Whitfield, driver of the automobile that struck the girl, was arrested by the police and turned over to the sheriff. Officers said that he was drinking and had about a quart of whiskey in his car when arrested.

The accident occurred in front of the Whitley home on South Main street, and Mrs. S. R. Whitley, the girl's mother, was a witness to it. The girl had started across the street, it was said, and failed to see the automobile, which was proceeding north. Whitfield saw Miss Whitley and says that he did all that was in his power to stop, but was unable to do so before the girl had been struck by the machine.

The victim was picked up in an unconscious condition. She was hurt about the body and the head, the latter injuries causing her death. Whitfield declared that two automobiles with blazing lights were proceeding south and that these lights blinded him to such an extent that he did not see Miss Whitley until he was within a few feet of her.

The daily average production of the Smackover, Arkansas, heavy oil field decreased 2,300 barrels. The daily average production in the United States, excluding Smackover heavy, decreased 8,830 barrels. The daily average production east of California was 1,443,250 barrels, a decrease of 11,150.

RAIL MERGER PLAN
FULLY DISCUSSED
BEFORE APPROVAL

Washington, October 7.—An understanding regarding the proposed Nickel Plate railroad merger was reached by O. P. Van Sweringen, its director head, and W. J. Harahan, president of the Chesapeake and Ohio, before the directors approved the plan, Harahan told the interstate commerce commission Wednesday.

He said they discussed earnings prior to reaching their understanding. "We took the record of 1923 and the first six months of 1924 as the fair average for the net earnings of the Chesapeake and Ohio," he said.

Harahan testified that they did not consider the average earnings of the other roads in the merger. The Chesapeake and Ohio case was the only one considered in particular, he said, while the others were treated only in a "general way."

NEGRO HELD IN JAIL FOR KILLING DEPUTY WHO SLEW HIS WIFE

Memphis, Tenn., October 7.—(AP)

Matt Lewis, 51, a negro laborer, was held in jail without bond here tonight on a charge of slaying C. C. Wortham, 62, a deputy sheriff, who is alleged by Lewis to have killed his wife, Sarah Lewis. The killings occurred before noon today in Hollywood, a suburb.

P. D. Cruse, Jr., another deputy sheriff, received cuts and bruises on his head, but was not seriously injured. Margaret Stinson, a daughter of Lewis, was shot in the abdomen. Physicians tonight said she had an even chance of recovering.

Lewis surrendered to deputies at the county jail shortly after the shooting. He was quoted by authorities as saying that he crushed Wortham's skull with the deputy's pistol after he saw Wortham fire two shots at Sarah Lewis and one at Margaret Stinson. Cruse refused to talk to newspaper men.

Social World Anticipates Opening Night of Horse Show

The eyes of the social world are turned with eager anticipation toward the opening night of the first horse show that Atlanta has known in many years. This affair will be one of unequalled brilliancy in the annals of society and the grandstand at Lakewood will be filled to overflowing with the beauty and chivalry of the new south gathered to do homage to his majesty the horse.

The members of the Junior league have had charge of the sale of the boxes and their success along this line has been marked. Many prominent Atlantans will be seen in their boxes and out-of-town guests who have been arriving all during the week will occupy boxes they have written or wired for.

Atlanta should be justly proud of her own champion horses when they enter the ring and prove that no city in all the country can produce better, or more beautiful ones.

Box Parties. Many interesting groups will be together, among them being Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Keramidas who will have as their guests Miss Mamie Lathrop, Miss Ellen Wolfe and Miss Marjorie McLeod.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilshire Riley and Mr. and Mrs. Carl Ramspeck will be a box together.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Slicer and Mr. and Mrs. Philip Alston will occupy a box together.

Mr. and Mrs. John King Ottley will entertain a group of friends.

Army Contingent. On account of the participation of several officers of the Twenty-second infantry, stationed at Fort McPherson, and of a troop from the Sixth cavalry, at Chickamauga, the army contingent will be well represented in the boxes during the show.

Among the prominent army people who will form a congenial party are General and Mrs. LeRoy Eltinge, Colonel and Mrs. W. J. Kendrick and Colonel and Mrs. D. W. Ryth.

Joanna Says:

If a girl doesn't walk around with her eyes on the ground and her mind on the hills, people think she's got a date with the devil.

The time to ex-lains a kiss is afterwards, not before. Go ahead, now, and say it ought to be the other way around.

About the only difference between men is some talk out loud and some whisper. The old-fashioned girl fell for the whisperers. We're next to 'em.

It used to be that when a girl was kissed good-night she needed watching. Now she's got sense enough to do her own watching.

Gives Advice to Expectant Mothers

"I ADVISE all expectant mothers to use Mother's Friend," writes Mrs. Wesley Miller, Hudson, Mich. "I have had nine children. With my first three I suffered for 24 hours. Beginning with the fourth I used Mother's Friend and was sick only 15 minutes. Since then I have had five and was only sick about 10 minutes with each."

Mother's Friend is the formula of an eminent physician and has been a positive blessing to thousands of expectant mothers for over three generations. Plain oils only penetrate the skin. But the highly refined oils and other ingredients in Mother's Friend make it penetrate through the skin to the muscles and ligaments; making them soft and pliable, thus aiding the tissues to relax and adjust themselves to the changes during motherhood.

The mothers who praise Mother's Friend the most are those who did not use it with their first baby but through its use with the second, were able to realize its almost unbelievable results.

Mother's Friend is the same as used by our mothers and grandmothers—don't wait—start using tonight—and meanwhile write Bradford Regulator Co., Dept. 34, Atlanta, Ga., for free valuable booklet "Motherhood and the Coming Baby" (sent in plain envelope). It tells how Mother's Friend can help you during pregnancy and at childbirth. This booklet also tells you many other things you want to know. "Mother's Friend" is sold by all druggists—everywhere.

Beautiful Ceremony Unites Miss Dudley and Mr. Walker

The marriage of Miss Arabella Stockwell Dudley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. Stockwell Dudley, and Joseph Spencer Walker took place Wednesday evening at 8:30 o'clock at the First Presbyterian church, the Rev. Dr. J. Sprole Lyons officiating. Beauty and brilliancy marked the impressive ceremony, and this occasion was one of the outstanding events in Atlanta's social history.

Beautiful Decorations. The handsome church presented a scene of unusual beauty, with its magnificent decorations in lovely arrangement. Palms, ferns, foliage plants and smilax barked the organ loft and pulpit, forming a rich background for tall baskets filled with shaggy white chrysanthemums. The chancel of the church was gracefully garlanded with ropes of southern smilax entwined with clusters of giant white chrysanthemums. Floor baskets of these lovely blossoms marked the pews reserved for the two immediate families. Massive brass candelabra holding burning white tapers were artistically arranged on either side of the altar, and reflected a gleam of softness over the wedding scene.

While the guests assembled, Charles Sheldon, church organist, rendered beautiful nuptial music, playing also the wedding march from Loengrin at the entrance of the bridal party.

Wedding Party. Entering first were the ushers, including Edgar Watkins, George Duff, of Mobile, Ala.; Richard Long and Lawrence Willet.

The attractive bride of bridesmaids entered in pairs alternating with the groomsmen, who also came in twos. The bridesmaids were Miss Corday Rice, Miss Isabel Howard, of Memphis, Tenn.; Miss Pauline Ware, Miss Eleanor Hargood, of Charleston, S. C.; Miss Winder Dudley, of Kentucky, and Mrs. T. R. Lewis, of LaGrange, Ga. They wore exquisite frocks of turquoise blue chiffon veiling pink metal cloth made along old-fashioned lines. Applied silver flowers trimmed the tight-fitting bodices and the full graceful skirts. The scalloped hems of the skirts were edged with silver lace, while silver ribbon bands encircled their hair. They carried old-fashioned bouquets in lace paper holders of Dresden flowers tied with pink and silver ribbons.

The groomsmen included John Bell, Arthur Power, Bernard Neal, Lewis Nicholson, Boykin Pennington and Edwin Lockridge.

The junior bridesmaid, Miss Jane Cooke, of St. Louis, cousin of the bride, entered alone. She wore an attractive figure wearing a gown of pink chiffon, the front of the skirt fashioned of silver net, on which was applied a dainty lace basket holding silk pastel flowers. She carried a small bouquet in lace paper holder of Dresden flowers.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Boykin Pennington, sister of the bride, wore a beautiful creation of pink chiffon made along straight lines over satin of a matching shade. She carried an arm bouquet of pink roses.

Preceding the bride were little Misses Jane and Anne Patillo, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. John Ray Patillo, who acted as flower girls. Their dainty frocks were of shell pink chiffon and they carried baskets of Opheelia roses tied with pink and silver ribbons.

Radiant Bride. The beautiful young bride entered with her father, S. Stockwell Dudley, by whom she was given in marriage, and were joined at the altar by the groom and his best man, John Stewart.

The bride's exquisite beauty was enhanced by her wedding gown of soft white chiffon veiling ivory tinted satin crepe. Loops of white silk threads strung with silver threads covered the entire skirt and gave a graceful appearance to the straight lines along which the gown was modeled. The same loop effect of white and silver threads outlined the bateau neck and sleeve line of the lovely bridal robe. The long train of white chiffon was held to her shoulders by tiny clusters of orange blossoms. A real lace veil enveloped the entire train and was attached to her hair by a coronet of exquisite rose point lace, which was worn by Mrs. Ed Lewis, who before her recent marriage was Miss Caroline Howard, of Memphis, Tenn., at whose wedding the lovely young bride was an attendant. She carried a bouquet of white orchids and valley lilies.

Reception Follows. Following the marriage services Mr. and Mrs. S. Stockwell Dudley entertained at an elaborate reception at their home on Lombardy way, to which 250 guests were invited.

The receiving party, including Mr. and Mrs. Dudley, the bride and groom and the members of the wedding party stood before a bank of pines and foliage plants interspersed with baskets of pink roses. The spacious reception rooms were beautifully decorated for the occasion with a profusion of lovely fall flowers, smilax and evergreen. The inclosed porch was transformed into a tropical garden with its masses of blooming plants, flower boxes and ferns. Punch was served on the porch by Mrs. Edwin Lockridge, Mrs. Harry Andoy, Miss Zoe Fischer, of Newman, and Miss Mary Rhorer. Pouring coffee in the dining room were Mrs. Clem Evans and Mrs. Lawrence Willet. Miss Evelyn Knox kept the bride's register.

Mrs. Dudley, the bride's mother, wore a handsome gown of pink chiffon shading into American Beauty. Her corsage bouquet was of orchids and valley lilies.

Mrs. Joseph Murphy Walker was handsomely gowned in black chiffon beaded in crystals and she wore a corsage bouquet of orchids and valley lilies.

Wedding Trip. During the evening Mr. Walker and his bride left for a wedding trip to New York and other points of interest in the east, after which they will be at home in Bradenton, Fla. She traveled in an attractive ensemble model of wren-colored velvet with beaver fur collar and cuffs. Her hat was a small model to match made of velvet and embroidered in gold threads.

Joanna Says:

Nobody ever asks you what are you doing yesterday? It's what you're doing today they want to know.

Funny, isn't it? The picture of an old-fashioned girl makes a modern girl's career go out.

According to the things some people say, there's only two kinds of girls today; plain bad and fancy bad.

All I've got to say about our grandmothers is that they were so good they had too much time for wicked thinking.

CITY RESIDENT RULED INELIGIBLE FOR SCHOOL BOARD

Barnesville, Ga., October 7.—(Special.)—Judge G. Ogden Persons, judge of the Flint circuit, Tuesday rendered his opinion in the case of certain citizens of Lamar county against B. M. Turner, of Barnesville, in which he held that Mr. Turner was ineligible to hold the position as a member of the board of education of the county by reason of his residence in the city of Barnesville, which has a local school system.

Mr. Turner was elected a member of the county board by the grand jury, and citizens instituted quo warranto proceedings to oust him.

STOCK JUDGING TEAM GOES TO EXPOSITION

Athens, Ga., October 7.—(Special.) The live stock judging team which will represent Georgia in the nation-wide vocational education stock judging contest, held in connection with the National Dairy exposition, in Indianapolis, left here this morning, in charge of L. M. Sheffer, state supervisor of agricultural education.

The team was composed by Boyd Farmer, Fred Ayres and Edgar Farr, all of whom are enrolled in the Southern agricultural classes of the Landon high school. They were accompanied on the trip by their agricultural instructor and coach, E. C. Young.

The history of representing Georgia in this national contest was won by these boys in a state contest held in Athens last January during Farmers' week here when they defeated teams from 22 other high schools.

In the contest at Indianapolis, where the Georgia boys will meet the best teams from the high schools of other states, classes of Jersey, Holstein, Ayrshire and Guernsey cattle will be judged. The federal board for vocational education is sponsoring the contest and has arranged for a number of liberal prizes, including a $400 scholarship given by the De Laval Separator company.

For the purpose of this money will be paid to the boy making the highest score.

"This is the sixth team, in as many years, that the state board for vocational education has sent from Georgia to national livestock judging contests," said Paul W. Chapman, state director of vocational education. "For four years we sent teams to the International Live Stock exposition at Chicago and our average score for that period, was the highest of any state in the United States."

"Last year we sent a team to the National Dairy exposition, which ranked sixth in competition with teams from 28 states. In view of the fact that Georgia is not primarily a live stock producing state, this is a wonderful record and is a great tribute to the efficiency of the instruction given by our teachers of agriculture in the secondary schools of the state."

The generous contributions of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce; S. C. Dobbs, of Atlanta; and the citizens of Ashburn, Ga., made this trip possible.

HIGH LIGHTS OF HISTORY

THE EXPLOITS OF DRAKE REVIVED ENGLAND'S INTEREST IN AMERICA AND EXPLORATION WAS RESUMED. THIS TIME BY A GROUP OF MEN WHO ARE SPOKEN OF AS THE GENTLEMEN ADVENTURERS.

THEY CAME TO THE NEW WORLD SEEKING NOT GOLD BUT GLORY AND EXCITEMENT.

THE FIRST OF THESE WAS MARTIN FROBISHER WHO IN 1576 SAILED NORTH OF LABRADOR SEEKING A NORTHWEST PASSAGE TO CHINA AND DISCOVERED THE BAY THAT BEARS HIS NAME AND A GREAT, ICEY LAND CALLED META INCOGNITA.

ON THIS VOYAGE FROBISHER FOUND WHAT HE THOUGHT WAS GOLD WHICH LED TO A SECOND AND THEN A THIRD EXPEDITION (1577-1578). BUT THE INTENSE COLD OF THE FROZEN NORTH FORCED THE SEARCHERS TO ABANDON THEIR PROJECT.

ANOTHER OF THESE GENTLEMEN ADVENTURERS WAS SIR HUMPHREY GILBERT WHO RECEIVING A GRANT FROM QUEEN ELIZABETH, SAILED IN 1583 TO FOUND A COLONY. BUT MEETING WITH SPANISH SHIPS SOON RETURNED TO ENGLAND.

IN 1583 GILBERT AGAIN SET OUT TO FOUND A COLONY. LANDING IN NEWFOUNDLAND HE CLAIMED IT FOR THE QUEEN. FROM THERE HE SAILED SOUTH ALONG THE COAST AS FAR AS THE KENNEBEC RIVER.

IN A TERRIFIC STORM GILBERT WAS DROWNED WHEN HIS SHIP FOUNDLED. HIS LAST WORDS, CALLED TO FRIENDS ON ANOTHER VESSEL, WERE: "THE WAY TO HEAVEN IS AS NEAR BY SEA AS BY LAND."

prologue is admirably presented by Jan Rubini and his Alaskans in a skit entitled "Snowbound," which gives the Howard girls opportunity to introduce some sprightly dance numbers. Rubini contributes a violin solo, "The World Is Waiting for the Sunrise," which never fails to win applause, and Melvin P. Ogden, the new organist, plays several very popular numbers. Among others scoring individual hits are Mary Reilly, Ed Anchors and R. D. Herbert.

Alma Rubens, playing the leading feminine role makes a charming figure in the wedding sequence of the picture. Gowned in a gorgeous creation of white satin with a court train and tulle veil, edged in Duchess lace, Raymond Griffith.

How Egyptian Women "Fixed Up"

The custom of "tattooing" dates back more than 3,000 years. Nowadays we sometimes see men who have tattooed arms or chests, but it is rare that a woman spoils her skin in such a manner.

In ancient Egypt, for reasons best

This picture shows an Egyptian belle of 3,500 years ago having her toilet arranged by another.

Some women had their heads shaved and wore wigs; many women caused themselves to be tattooed. The marks were made on forehead and chin, and could never be washed off. We also find that the women of old Egypt used rouge for making their lips red. Around their eyes, they sometimes formed black lines, using a powder containing charcoal dust.

As you may guess, it was chiefly the girls and young women who spent much time "fixing up." They wished to win husbands. In later life, a woman became very much of a drudge. She arose at daybreak, or before, to make breakfast for her husband before he went to work. The water needed for the house she went out to fetch from a river, canal or pool. Jars of water, she carried on her head. She ground the grain by pounding it between stones, and then baked bread in a crude oven. It appears that the Egyptian woman's bread was thick and hard, and had a sour taste.

Besides cooking, the housewife spun thread and wove it into cloth, mended the clothes of her husband and children, and took butter and eggs to market. Sometimes a woman wore more cloth than was needed to take care of her family, and was able to obtain an income by the extra work. In spite of her hard life, the Egyptian woman seems to have been looked up to as the head of the household. The poor but in which the family lived, and the small plot of ground around it, usually belonged to her. An Egyptian child would tell his name by saying the he was the son of a mother of such-and-such a name, and would not mention his father.

Women walked where they chose, and their husbands were not expected to tell them how to behave. In Syria at that time there were women who covered their faces with veils, but Egyptian women did not do so.

Women commonly went barefooted, but sandals were worn on certain feast days. Bracelets were worn, and the ankles were often circled with rings of colored glass.

Plea To Recognize Reds Is Spurred By Labor Chief

By Labor Chief

Atlantic City, N. J., October 7.—(AP)

An appeal to American labor by Arthur A. Purcell, member of the British parliament to establish close relations with the organ workers of Russia, was spurred today by President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, at its annual convention.

Mr. Purcell, who is president of the late national Federation of Trades unions and fraternal delegate of the British Trade unions congress, had addressed the delegates, urging solidarity among the toilers of the world.

After telling of his recent visit to Russia and his study of industrial conditions there, he made his appeal.

His words were greeted with silence, but he received perfunctory applause at the conclusion of his address when he complimented American labor.

Green Spurred Communism. When President Green arose to speak, he said:

"I want to be frank and kindly in all I say, but we in America know something of the teachings of communism and the control the communist party exercises over the so-called Russian revolutionaries."

"We know that influence emanating from Moscow is seeking, as it has always sought, not to cooperate with us, but to capture and control us. They are frank in their declarations. They call the officers and representatives of the American labor movement 'fascists,' 'crooks' and 'scoundrels.' They declare frankly that they do not believe in collective bargaining. They do not see in any strike an opportunity to increase wages, shorten hours, improve the condition of the employment of workers, but they see in every strike an opportunity for revolution."

Send Message to Russia. "Well, the working people of America are very hard headed, experienced people. They are not easily led by these strange utterances. The trade union educational league here in America, which is a creature of the communist party, frankly announces that its policy is to bore with in the labor movement, to destroy it and substitute for our philosophy the philosophy of communism."

"We are not ready to accept that," shouted Mr. Green, "and we wish that our friend who has so kindly offered such frank suggestions might take back to the Russian red internationalist message."

"That the American labor movement will not affiliate with an organization that preaches that doctrine," Mr. Green swung his fist vigorously and his powerful voice reached all parts of the hall. The delegates rose as one, stamped their feet and yelled their approval.

Wet Resolution Missing. The convention today received 84 resolutions of a widely varied character. One from the Chicago Bank Employees association, called for recognition of soviet Russia by the United States. A proposal also was made to abolish the United States bureau of industry.

For the first time in recent years no resolution was offered favoring beer and light wines. A proposal also was made to "congress" for the investigation of the textile industry to determine the influence of the present schedule upon conditions of labor.

Dempsey and Wife Reported To Be at Parting of Ways

"SEPARATIONS" OFTEN HOLLYWOOD PUBLICITY STUNTS

By JOHN P. MILES.

Hollywood, Cal., October 7.—Now that the vogue of kidnapping stars has had its day—friendly separations are again in order.

This time you are led to believe that Estelle Taylor, the fair, and Jack Dempsey, the box fighter, have reached the parting of the ways, and that they growl at each other across the breakfast table.

In other words, they have separated. As such separations go, it was Miss Taylor's part of the program to proclaim loudly and defiantly that she still loved Jack and with all the artistry at her disposal, she demanded to know what desplicable car started the rumors she and her Jack had separated.

To prove that she still loves her husband, Miss Taylor will produce a stack of telegrams from him containing such potent and forceful words as love, desire and swoon.

It Miss Taylor had forgotten to show the telegrams, the "separation" would have been spoiled irreparably. Sticking closely to the technique of such "separations," Mr. Dempsey in his own emphatic way, will reiterate his love for Estelle, and as is customary, will show a telephone bill proving, even to reporters, that he called Estelle on the long distance every night for weeks at a time.

"Separations," such as the Dempseys, is the latest resort, speaking in a publicity way, for almost forgotten screen stars and box-fighters.

Several months ago the proper thing to do when his client no longer received voluntary press notices, was to have the newspaper star "kidnaped." This worked fine until "kidnapings" came in bunches—then started the friendly separations vogue. You remember the one about the Valentinos, who needed publicity badly.

Generally speaking, all "separations" start on Monday, and this is the course they take, with particular emphasis on the Dempsey separation. Monday—News leaked out that all was not well in the Dempsey ménage. It was pointed out that Jack was traveling and the Mrs. at home.

Tuesday—Mrs. Dempsey showed her love telegrams and deny the base rumors. Wednesday—Jack Dempsey, after rushing to Hollywood from the east, will deny rumors and show telephone bills.

Thursday—Both will admit, reluctantly, that they have talked the matter over and that, while they still love each other, it is best they seek separate careers.

Friday—Jack Dempsey, aided by the Mrs. will administer a final knockout to the "separation" rumor.

Saturday—Estelle Taylor will announce she has just signed a million-dollar contract in the movies.

Sunday—A clever press agent will receive a big bonus with a letter of thanks from Mr. and Mrs. Dempsey.

only an hour today, achieved no substantial progress. The spokesmen of the various delegations admitted this, but they qualified it with the declaration that fresh suggestions were forthcoming concerning the necessity of a clear-cut understanding that compulsory arbitration must be the guiding principle of the Rhine pact. This is what the allies have been contending for, and the jurists were asked to frame new articles dealing with this subject.

Compulsory arbitration is a feature of the Geneva pact, and the fundamental principles of which the French are eager to keep to the fore inflexibly, and which many other nations at the league assembly also approved as the only safeguard of world peace.

Locarno, therefore, like Geneva, appears headed on the road where he who refuses to arbitrate and commits warlike acts will be hailed as an aggressor and punished.

Czechoslovakia, through her foreign minister, Edouard Benes, arrived on the scene today.

Gustav Stresemann's condition seemed improved today.

OBEDIENT TALKS TO 122D OFFICERS AT LUNCHEON MEET

A representative gathering of officers were present, including Captain Elliott, formerly commanding officer of the Cordele guard

Permanent Peace Germany's Aim, Says Dr. Luther

Locarno, Switzerland, October 7.—(AP)—Not only peace now, but peace for all time, is Germany's desire, the German chancellor, Dr. Luther, informed Mr. Briand, the French foreign minister, today in a private consultation of the two statesmen. This consultation stands out as the biggest single event since the opening of the security conference.

The two leaders stole quietly away from Locarno and, meeting at a secluded spot on the shore of Lake Maggiore, had a frank talk on European problems as a whole and especially how best to consolidate the peace of Europe.

This meeting of conciliation marked by an expression of the determination of both statesmen to do everything humanly possible to banish the Franco-German war spectre, has injected a new ray of optimism into the political atmosphere, despite the fact that it will result in the fashioning of a formula whereby France can guarantee in a special way, the territorial integrity of Poland and Czechoslovakia, her allies.

That problem will require a consultation of the cabinets at Paris and Berlin, for France and Germany will find it difficult yielding from their original position with the support of their home governments and home parliaments.

The conference itself, which met for

AT

THE PEARL HEADED PIN

BY ROY VICKERS

SYNOPSIS.
Henry Ledway and his partner, John Selkirk, are accused of murdering a business rival. Ledway is supposed to have 'died' in a railroad wreck. Selkirk serves twenty years in prison. Upon his release he informs Ledway's wife and her present husband, Colonel Hallett, that neither he nor Ledway is guilty. The Halletts are remodeling their London home, and Mrs. Hallett goes there to meet the contractor, Edward March. Ledway appears and threatens her with blackmail. Colonel Hallett arrives and Ledway, trying to escape, falls through an open shaft. The colonel, unable to find the body, holds his wife's story of the coincidence as a hallucination. March, it develops later, kills Ledway's threat, mutilates the face and throws the body into the river with papers of his own in a pocket. He then adopts permanently his frequent disguise as Cornboise, an art dilapidate and drops from sight as March. Ledway's body is taken from the river. It is identified by Ray Brastowe, a sailor of Mrs. Hallett's daughter, Joan, as that of March, his uncle, by means of the papers. The police hunt Selkirk, suspected of killing March. A pearl-headed pin found on the body, which Ledway had taken from Mrs. Hallett, is identified as hers. Fearing that she and her husband will be accused if the dead man is identified as Ledway, she testifies at the inquest that she had given the pin to March. The confidence of her husband and Joan is further shaken by the news that March will his fortune of 250,000 pounds to Mrs. Hallett.

Cornboise, with whom Joan plans to open a modiste's shop, calls and Mrs. Hallett recognizes him as March. He reveals that he named her in the will so he might get the money back following his disappearance by blackmailing her. Mrs. Hallett forces him to shelter Selkirk by threatening to call the police. When Joan learns that her mother is mysteriously unable to give March's money to Brastowe, as Mrs. Hallett had planned, she begs Ray to refuse it. He does so, but misunderstanding, scorns her, even when she tells him she retrogrades his love. Detective Inspector Rason learns that Mrs. Hallett has not told the truth about a number of details, and Mrs. Hallett, in order to avoid further questioning, goes out of town without leaving an address. Cornboise continues to pay attention to Joan.

Ray murmured a police assurance and lapsed into silence. Joan felt the strain of that silence. While they were talking banalities she could keep her composure. But in the silence some magnetic force seemed to emanate from Ray Brastowe that burnt up all her philosophy and with it all the reasons she had given herself for marrying Cornboise.

"If there's nothing I can do I think I'll get back to town," he said, rising. Joan glanced at her wrist watch. A quarter past six. She had promised Cornboise she would be with him in time for dinner.

"Will you give me a lift into Brighton, Ray?" she asked.

"With pleasure. But in that case, hadn't we better wait for Colonel Hallett?"

"No, the car we hired will wait for him. He, I suppose, will go back to town. I must just say good-bye to Hannah."

A minute later she rejoined him in the garden. He was waiting for her and turned as she drew near.

"I take it there's no need to hurry back to town," he said, awkwardly. "Couldn't we dine together in Brighton first?"

"Ray!" His name caught on her breath as if she had cried out in pain. "What is it?" he asked quickly.

"I have to dine with my husband. We were married this morning."

"O! It was a sound like a cough, but he at once recovered himself. "Forgive me. It was a bit of a surprise. I congratulate you and—hope you will have every happiness."

Rage welled up in her—rage not against him, but against the blind fate that was driving her to Cornboise, her husband.

"Don't be a beast, Ray."

"Really—"

"Oh, you know what I mean! Now that it is all over—can't we talk sanely to each other instead of this dreadful drawing room stuff? 'Every happiness,' indeed!"

It was the old, untamed Joan who spoke, and it was the old virile Ray Brastowe who flung back at her: "All right, then. . . . Why the devil did you do it?"

"Because I had no choice."

"Is that true?"

"Yes. But I'm not going to prove it."

"What if you had had freedom of choice?"

She was exalted. In half an hour she would be with Cornboise, and her dream of life as it might have been would be over.

"If I had had freedom of choice I think I would have asked you again."

"Ah!" he gasped. "With those words you've inflicted a lifelong punishment for a single act of folly."

"No. No. Our friendship can live again."

"Friendship," he scoffed. "D'you think I'm such a fool as to think I can keep friends with you when every time I come to see you I have to ask for you by another man's name?"

She moved toward the lane.

"Let's go," she said.

"Take my car. I will wait for Colonel Hallett."

"But—"

"I won't come with you," he repeated. "I'm damned if I'll take you to another man."

She turned away. Immediately he called her name, and this time the roughness had gone out of his voice.

"Well?" she asked.

"Good-bye, Joan," he said.

She bit her lip and gave him her hand.

"Good-bye," she murmured, and tried to say his name, but could not. A moment later she was running down the lane to the car.

INSTALLMENT LIX.

Rason Sets a Trap.

Cornboise took tea in the lounge of the Parnassus, then went for a walk. In due course, feeling sufficiently invigorated, he went to a florist's and chose a quantity of flowers.

Reentering the lounge, he was accosted by the manager.

"I am extremely sorry to have to tell you, sir, that there has been a slight accident in your suite. A pipe burst. Fortunately, no damage whatever was done to your things. But I have had them removed to number four suite, which is next door and really is in every way an exact replica. I am at a loss to offer you an adequate apology. During twenty-five years in this business, I have never known such a thing to happen."

"O, I desarey it makes no difference," said Cornboise amiably.

For an hour he busied himself in the arranging of the flowers.

His task was still uncompleted when a pageboy knocked and entered.

"Well?"

"There's a Mr. Selkirk downstairs wants to see you, sir," said the boy.

"I don't know anyone of that name," said Cornboise quickly. "Did he say what he wanted?"

"He said he wanted to see you most particularly, sir, and he was sure you'd see him when you heard his name."

"O, well," evidently he seems to know me!" said Cornboise with a nervous laugh. "Just a minute, will you?"

He went to the desk, wrote a note to Joan asking her to wait in the lounge until he came down, sealed it, addressed it "Mrs. Cornboise," and then:

"See that Mrs. Cornboise gets this as soon as she arrives in the hotel and ask this gentleman, Mr.—what did you say his name was?—O, yes, Selkirk—ask him up here."

Downstairs, near the reception office, Selkirk was waiting for the return of the pageboy. By his side was Detective-Inspector Rason.

"Remember what I told you?" Rason was saying. "There's a small chandelier in the center of the room. The disc is in the middle of the chandelier. Try and keep him as near it as you can. We can hear voices from any part of the room, but it is much clearer if you keep fairly near it. We shall be in the next suite."

"Yes, I've got all that," said Selkirk wearily.

"Here's the boy," said Rason, and vanished.

Selkirk followed the boy to the lift and a minute later was facing Cornboise.

"Er—Mr. Selkirk?" asked Cornboise for the benefit of the boy.

"Why, the 'Mr. Selkirk'?" he asked.

"Really I—I cannot understand you," said Cornboise. "Forgive me, but I find the room a little warm—these flowers."

He went to the French window, opened it, found there was no one on the balcony and that no one could obtain access to the balcony except through the room. Then he went to the bedroom on one side of the sitting room and to the dressing room on the other side.

Having looked in vain for an eaves dropper, he returned to Selkirk.

"Are you mad?" he demanded.

"Why are you taking these insane risks? Why, they might have spotted you when you gave your name here?" Selkirk dropped into the armchair that was farthest from the chandelier. "They did spot me."

"What?"

"They did spot me," repeated Selkirk. "At this moment they are telephoning the police. They won't disturb us here, Cornboise. They don't like scenes in the suites of wealthy visitors—but they'll arrest me when I go out of here. Probably in the lift. And there will be a fellow waiting on the landing in case I take the stairs."

Cornboise's eyes narrowed. He looked long at Selkirk, and then:

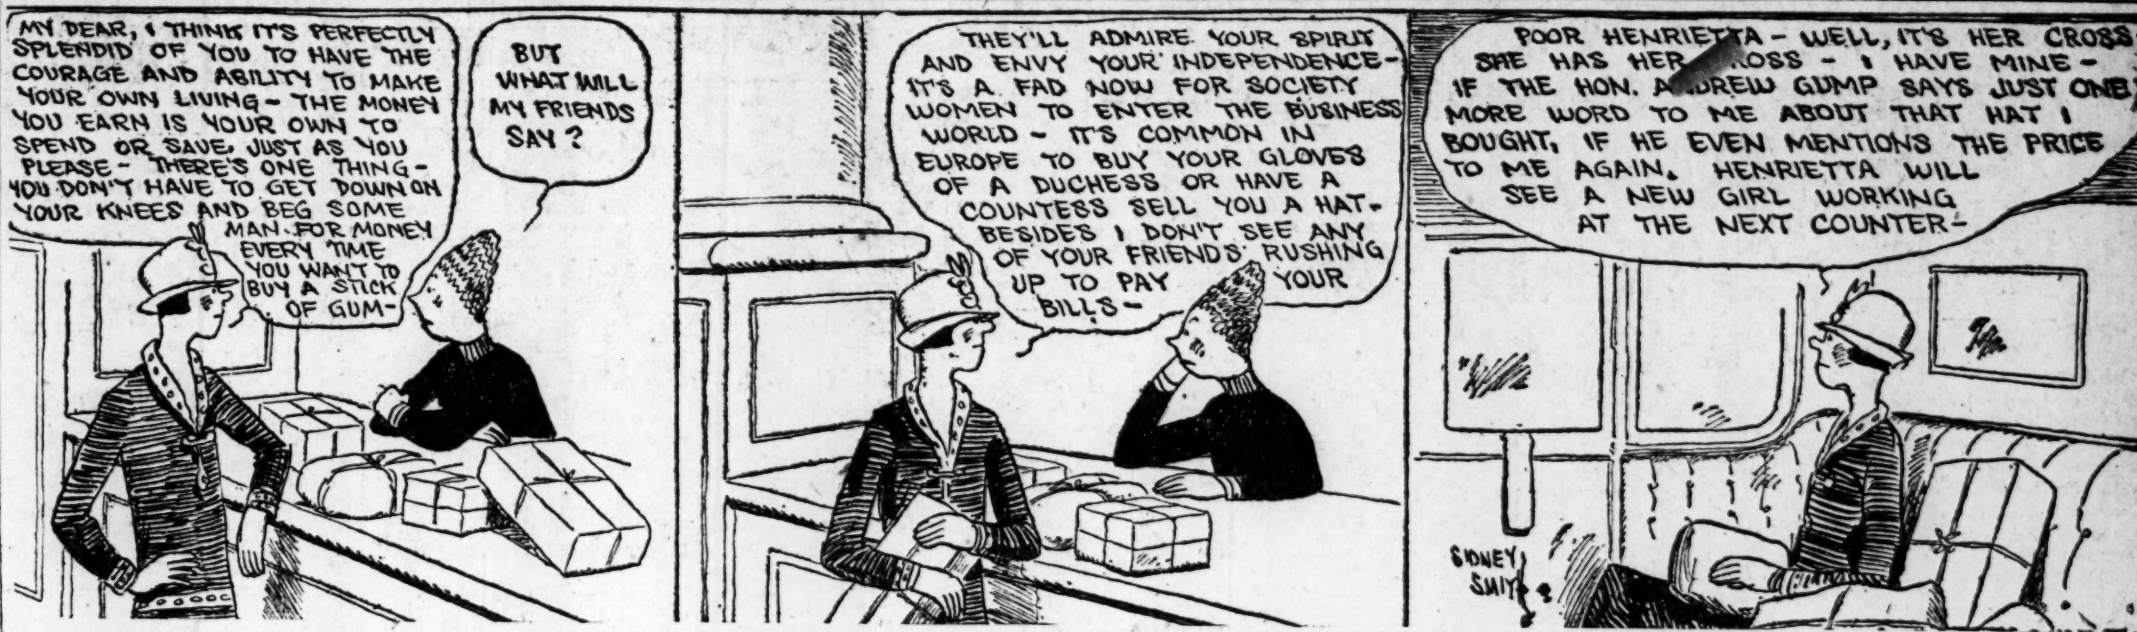

"Huh! There's some game on, I see. Why have you come here?"

"To give you a chance," answered Selkirk. "I spent the morning with Mrs. Hallett. She supplemented my knowledge."

"Your knowledge!" taunted Cornboise. "By knowledge do you mean that bluff stuff you handed out to me the other night?"

MITCHELL AIR PLAN PRAISED, ASSAILED

Washington, October 7.—(AP)—

Colonel William Mitchell's plan for a sweeping reorganization in the nation's air defense was alternately praised and denounced today before the president's air board. Two witnesses favored the plan, two opposed it, one said it "ought to work" but another was not questioned on the proposal.

After sitting for eight full hours, the board recessed until Monday, when Representative Martin B. Madden, chairman of the house appropriations committee, will testify on army and navy appropriations. Board members will go by airplane tomorrow to Mitchell Field, N. Y., to attend the Pulitzer air races.

Testimony today covered the widest range of subjects of any single session since the hearing began.

Captain James T. Moore, marine corps aviator, told the board that naval air officers "hesitate to express their feelings" in testifying before an investigating body.

Will Not State Real Views.
"In fact," said Captain Moore, "I know they will not come here and state their real views."

He endorsed Colonel William Mitchell's plan for a department of defense.

Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, naval air chief, urged that the Shennandoah disaster, failure of the Hawaiian flight, and inability of navy planes to accomplish their purpose be replaced with a dirigible three times its size, and declared the navy "must not be only the treaty navy, but have its full quota of aviation," as well.

He denied, without mentioning Colonel Mitchell by name, his charge that amateur "bungling" by non-flying naval officers was responsible for the Shennandoah disaster, failure of the Hawaiian flight, and inability of navy planes to accomplish their purpose.

Major Thomas Milling, stationed at McCook field, Dayton, Ohio, who was called at Mitchell's request, endorsed the colonel's national defense department proposal. He testified at some length, amplifying a prepared statement.
